Charges Nazi Offer Based on 'Ruse And Violence'

STICKS TO AIMS

'Won't Lay Down Arms Until World Has Certain Peace'

Paris, (AP—via radio)—Premier Daladier, in a radio speech broadcast to the French nation, tonight accused Adolf Hitler of repeatedly breaking promises and said the French would not lay down their arms "until the world had certain peace."

"Neither France nor Great Britain has embarked on any war of conquest," the premier said, "they accepted that war because Germany wanted to impose domination of Europe."

"The peace that Germany offers now is one of ruse and violence. There will, however, be a real peace in the future."

He reminded his audience of the German conquest of Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland. After each of these conquests, Daladier declared, Hitler had asserted he had no more territorial demands. Daladier's address was an answer to Hitler's peace proposals of last Friday.

"Every six months Germany makes new territorial demands and then says she is satisfied."

"Far from bringing about a reduction of armaments, this system makes other nations increase their armaments."

"In order to bring about a lasting peace . . . we must fight against the abuses of force."

"A security of nations can come about by mutual understanding devoid of all surprises."

Doesn't Bring Happiness

"The time has passed when a territorial conquest brings happiness to people."

"Wars bring about bread-cards and food-cards, and our eating is limited. France holds in horror such servitude."

"I affirm again solemnly that we are fighting and will continue to fight until we obtain a guarantee of peace."

"If we demolish now, again six months we might have to face another aggression."

"If we called for peace now and then in six months sent our men back to the lines under the bombardment of German planes, no Frenchman would follow us."

"The German soldiers in the trenches must be saying to themselves perhaps our government opposed Versailles . . . but our government has also taken Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland."

"The cause which the French soldier is defending is a just cause, and one of which he may be proud. The French government will show itself worthy of the confidence extended to it by all of its sons."

Real Back Assaults

French troops were reported today to have turned back numerous German assaults south of the straits.

Chamberlain Delays His Reply to Hitler

London—(P)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today postponed from Wednesday until Thursday the house of commons speech in which he is expected to reply to Adolf Hitler's peace overtures.

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told commons that the postponement had been decided on in order to allow fuller consultation with dominion governments.

The prime minister's speech thus is scheduled for the same day that David Lloyd George, Britain's World War prime minister, has called a meeting of his council for peace and reconstruction.

Lloyd George has advocated an international conference to settle European issues.

Minister Issues Warning As Mission Leaves For Moscow

SWEDEN IS WORRIED

Northern Neutral Nations Awaiting Soviet-Finn Showdown

Helsinki—(P)—All civilians who can go were urged to make immediate preparations to leave the environs of Helsinki and Viipuri in a broadcast tonight by Minister of the Interior Urho Kekkonen. He said the measure was purely precautionary but the sooner carried out the better.

The warning was given as a Finnish mission was on its way to Moscow at the invitation of the Soviet government to discuss unspecified economic and political problems. Russia has gained sweeping concessions from similar missions from smaller Baltic states.

The Finnish mission is expected to reach the Soviet capital tomorrow.

Viipuri is a port on the gulf of Finland, almost directly north of Leningrad. (Russian warships were reported massed today at Kronstadt, huge naval base near Leningrad, and hundreds of thousands of Russian troops are on the frontiers of the Baltic states.)

The official decree calling on civilians to leave was scheduled to be issued tomorrow, but the departures were left on a voluntary basis.

The government will give free railway transportation to all who cannot afford tickets and will otherwise give material aid.

Stockholm—(P)—Europe's northern neutrals anxiously watched the approaching showdown between Soviet Russia and Finland today for a further sign of the new order in the Baltic region.

Confronted by Russia's quest for supremacy in that part of Europe, the northern countries which had not already signed on the Soviet dotted line wondered how Finland would make out.

Finland, Sweden, Denmark and Norway were drawn together at Helsinki in a discussion of how to turn to page 2 col. 2

British Watching for Signs of Reich Naval Activity in North Sea

London—(P)—The threat of German naval activity in the North Sea, broadened by clashes between British warships and Nazi bombing planes, spurred the royal navy's "watchdog" to new vigilance today.

Air and sea patrols stood guard against any surprise maneuver by the German fleet, now bottled up in the Kiel canal and the Baltic.

The British press said the fleet was taking every precaution to prevent the Germans from turning raiders loose in the Atlantic by turning upon shipping.

Despite German claims to the contrary, British naval experts said all enemy attempts to harass the North Sea patrol from the air had failed.

Anti-aircraft guns, the admiralty said in a communique last night, were successful again yesterday in turning back German bombers which made repeated attacks on British war vessels.

The communique did not say whether any of the air raiders had been shot down.

Illegal Lobbying Case Postponed to Nov. 6

Madison—(P)—Postponement until Nov. 6 of the preliminary hearing for Fred W. Cords, Milwaukee, charged with illegal lobbying before the legislature, was approved today by Judge Roy H. Proctor in superior court.

Deputy Attorney General J. Ward Rector informed the court that Cords' attorney, Norman H. Klug of Milwaukee, concurred in a stipulation for delay.

Proposal to Build New Indian School At Oneida Is Studied

Washington, Ind.—(P)—The Indian bureau is considering proposals for construction of an Indian school at Oneida, Wis., but no decisions have been made on size or site requirements.

The bureau said no money was available at present, but that if a decision to build is made, the proposal probably would be submitted to the next session of congress.

Whether the building should house an elementary or high school, would depend, it was indicated, on reports as to the number of potential pupils and their ages.

Testimony Is Started In Anti-Trust Trial

South Bend, Ind.—(P)—A jury of Indiana farmers and small-town tradesmen heard evidence in federal court today in the government's anti-trust trial of the General Motors Corporation and affiliated finance companies.

Twelve jurors and two alternates were chosen with little difficulty yesterday after Judge Walter C. Lindsey of Danville, Ill., called up the case, which may take three months to try and elicit testimony from nearly 500 witnesses.

General Motors, three affiliates and 17 officials pleaded innocent to charges they tried to set up a monopoly by forcing dealers to finance installment-plan automobile sales through their facilities.

Motorist Hurt as Car Hits Culvert

Authorities Investigating Accident This Morning at Hortonville

County authorities are investigating the circumstances surrounding a traffic accident in which Edward E. Brunk, 46, Milwaukee, was seriously injured on Highway 45 at Hortonville about 10 o'clock this morning. Brunk is in the New London Memorial hospital with a possible skull fracture, chest injury and severe lacerations about the face and hands.

Captain Charles Steidl said he was told that Brunk failed to stop after being involved in a minor collision with a car driven by Arthur Collar, Hortonville, about a mile east of New London. After hitting Collar's car Brunk went off the road, through a fence and into a field. He drove back onto the road and was stopped later by two motorists who had followed him, it was reported.

Brunk started to return to the scene of the accident, but again turned toward Hortonville after the motorists had gone, and when he reached Hortonville his car struck a culvert at a curve, it was said. Brunk was taken from his wrecked car, which caught fire, and was removed to the New London hospital.

John Nieuwenhuis, Sr., 61, Hortonville, received two broken ribs and body bruises in an accident involving a car driven by Frank Schubert, Jr., 315 E. Winnebago street, Appleton, crossing Highway 45 in front of his home when the accident occurred.

San Francisco—(P)—A program of liberal social legislation as "the most effective weapon" against the "complete reaction" of the anti-administration bloc in congress was urged upon the opening session of the CIO national convention today by John L. Lewis.

Lewis made the recommendation in his presidential report as he attacked the recent administration of the national labor relations act, one of the pieces of social legislation the CIO has championed.

Under attacks of the A. F. of L. and industry, he said, the labor board "has more than leaned over backwards" with the result that its administration "may completely destroy existing advantages which labor now enjoys under the act."

But he gave no indication of joining A. F. of L. leaders in seeking revision of the act or anything else. His report, liberally sprinkled with attacks on A. F. of L. leaders, made no mention of President Roosevelt's frequent appeals for labor unity.

Gallogly Surrenders To Police in Texas

Atlanta—(P)—Safety Commissioner Lon Sullivan announced today a report that Richard G. Gallogly, fugitive, life-term slayer, had surrendered to police at Dallas, Texas.

Commissioner Sullivan said his information came from Mrs. Worth Yankner, mother of the escaped convict, who telephoned him that "Dick Gallogly, Atlanta life-terminator, had given up at Dallas, Texas, just a few minutes ago."

Gallogly, was sentenced to life imprisonment 10 years ago after pleading guilty in a holdup-slashing which climaxed a series of crimes committed while he was a student at Oglethorpe university in Atlanta.

He escaped Friday while being transferred from an Atlanta hospital to the state penitentiary at Reidsville.

Suspect Fatally Shot By Milwaukee Officer

Milwaukee—(P)—A burglary suspect wounded by a patrolman who surprised four men hauling a safe into a car last night, died in a hospital today gasping to detectives that his name was Walter Miller and that he lived on Chicago's south side near Cosmo field.

The officer, Oliver Haase, 31, suffered a deep gash in the forehead when the suspect felled him with a brick.

Detectives later took into custody a former Michigan convict who they said had admitted being at the scene but claimed he was unaware of a burglary attempt. The former convict's wife also was detained for questioning.

Thinks Wisconsin Gang Linked With Killing in Chicago

Officer Says Slot Machine In Victim's Auto May Provide Motive

Chicago—(P)—Captain Martin McCormick of the Warren avenue police said last night he was investigating a theory that a Wisconsin gang might have been responsible for the slaying of Amerigo Bertolini on the west side last night.

A slot machine found in Bertolini's car, McCormick said, was found to have been sold by a Chicago novelty company to a purchaser in Racine, Wis.

The machine was installed in a country club west of Racine, McCormick said, and a short time ago it was hijacked by seven men.

"I have information that Bertolini was warned three times to stop stealing slot machines," McCormick reported. "It seems likely he was operating in the Wisconsin territory, and a mob from there may have finished him."

Bertolini, 45 years old, with a police record dating back to 1918, was slain by two shotgun blasts as he was about to step into his new automobile. Investigators were able to obtain only vague descriptions of his slayers.

Captain McCormick later announced that the manager of a country club two miles north of Racine, had identified Bertolini, from a photograph, as one of seven men who carried away several slot machines Sept. 24.

SOUGHT AT RACINE

Racine—(P)—Amerigo Bertolini, who was shot to death in Chicago Sunday night, was wanted here in connection with the hijacking of slot machines from three Racine country clubs.

At the time of Bertolini's death, the district attorney was preparing extradition papers to return him to Racine on robbery while armed or armed assault charges.

Warrants previously were issued against Bertolini in connection with the hijackings.

Asks Backing for Community Chests

Roosevelt Characterizes Them as 'Home Front' In Radio Address

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt called for support of community chests in a radio address last night, terming them "the home front."

"Our home front must be defended at all hazards," he added. The president spoke in behalf of the 1939 mobilization for Human Needs, saying:

"We look out upon a world unhappily torn by war with all of its attendant horrors of death and destruction. We must remember, no matter how broad our sympathies, that charity begins at home."

"I like the ringing challenge in that militant designation: Mobilization for human needs. It is a call for each and every one of us to extend a helping hand to all who suffer privation or want within our borders."

"We must work, each of us in our own neighborhood, to support the local community chest."

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that the community chests have a special responsibility to bring comfort to families in want.

"It is the survival of the old spirit of home that must be guaranteed," he said. "For the family still remains the basis of society as we know it, and must be preserved as an institution if democracy as we have always understood it is to be perpetuated."

Medical Science May Conquer Influenza by Use of 'Miracle Drug,' Health Service States

BY STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer

Washington—The possibility that medical science at last has found a method of conquering influenza was disclosed today by the public health service. The new "miracle drug" called sulfaipyridine, already widely used in treating pneumonia, may come to be used as a preventive of the flu, according to Miss Margaret Pittman, associate bacteriologist at the National Institute of Health.

An 8-month-old baby gave the clue to the sulfaipyridine method of controlling the disease, said Miss Pittman in her report. The infant developed inflammation of the eyes and ears and pneumonia. In addition to pneumonia germs, he had a heavy infection of the flu germs in his lungs, throat, eyes and ears.

U. S. Judge Refuses To Quash Indictment Under Lindbergh Law

Chicago—(P)—Federal Judge Charles A. Woodward refused today to quash a Lindbergh law indictment charging Jack Russell, Oklahoma desperado, with the kidnap-slaying of William Scott Hamilton, of Arkansas City, Kans., and set his arraignment for Oct. 18.

Hamilton's body was found in a ditch near Ringwood, Ill., July 14. Judge Woodward based his refusal on the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals which upheld the validity of the Lindbergh law in the case of John Henry Seadlund. Seadlund was convicted and executed in Chicago in July, 1938, for the kidnap-slaying of Charles Ross, wealthy Chicago greeting card manufacturer.

Donald Rogers, Russell's attorney, argued that congress had no authority to regulate anything but interstate commerce and that the Lindbergh law was in conflict with the constitution. Congress, he argued, was without power to define a crime and fix punishment, and that up until the famous Lindbergh kidnapping there had been no attempt by the federal government to "supersede" the police powers of the states.

There was a division of opinion among leaders as to whether the administration's victory could be counted a test of strength on the neutrality bill itself—the most controversial section of which is that providing repeal of the present embargo on arms.

Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky told reporters he regarded the vote as a measuring stick but Senator Borah (R-Idaho), a leader of the opposition in the neutrality fight, said it could not be so considered.

Offered By Tobey

The motion to split up the bill was made by Senator Tobey (R-N.H.). He proposed to send the measure back to the foreign relations committee with instructions to write two bills—one the embargo repealer, the other setting forth restrictions on American shipping and travel to belligerents.

Tobey wanted immediate action on the latter provisions, which would prohibit American vessels from carrying goods to warring countries. He contended the procedure would not forestall early action on repealing the arms embargo, a move recommended by President Roosevelt.

Senator LaFollette (P-Wis.) was one of the 26 members who voted in favor of the motion. Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) was not recorded as voting.

Wagner Speech

Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) told his colleagues today that no commercial sacrifice would be too great a price to pay to keep this nation out of the European war.

Arguing that it was a "delusion" to believe the present embargo on the sale of arms would prevent involvement, Wagner advocated adoption of the administration neutrality bill repealing the embargo and placing restrictions on all trade with belligerents.

He cited records to show that only 10 per cent of exports to belligerents during the time of restricted submarine warfare in the last conflict were arms. Shipping is endangered to the same extent, he said, whether American vessels carry arms or other materials.

"In such circumstances," Wagner declared, "the only real embargo on war materials is an embargo on all trade with belligerents. Unless we are ready to adopt that proposal, let us cease to delude ourselves by placing an embargo on an insignificant and arbitrarily selected group of war materials."

Would 'Remove Dangers'

He expressed belief that the administration bill, which would prohibit American ships from transporting any material to a belligerent and would require belligerents to obtain title in this country to purchases made here, would remove all the "obvious dangers" of American involvement in the war.

He said, however, that this could be done only "at a tremendous sacrifice to our industries and our shipping."

"These circumstances present us with a clear-cut choice," he said. "If we want to engage once more in the diplomatic protest and recriminations that marked our relations with the belligerents in the world war prior to our entry, if we propose to renew the claims we then made that complete freedom of the seas in trading with belligerents is among the 'most sacred rights' of nations."

Burglary Revealed In Columbia County

Portage, Wis.—(P)—Theft of approximately $33,000 in checks and $125 in cash from a Columbia county highway department safe was disclosed today. County officials said the checks were of no value to the thief.

Since discovery of the theft, Sept. 15, Sheriff Harry M. Hibner has been carrying on a quiet investigation but reported today there had been no developments.

The sheriff said the thief "apparently knew his way around" inasmuch as he merely gave the combination knob a partial turn in opening the safe. The door, he explained, had been locked in such manner that it could be opened without working the entire combination.

Group Will Protest Klode Appointment To Welfare Position

Sheboygan—(P)—A special committee was formed today at the forty-third annual convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs to protest the selection of Frank C. Klode, of Milwaukee, as director of the state department of public welfare.

Klode, former chairman of the state board of control, was named to the director's post at a meeting in Madison yesterday.

The special committee, organized at a town hall meeting of the committee on legislation and American citizenship, named Mrs. Harold Peterson, Milwaukee, as chairman.

The group instructed the committee to submit to the resolutions committee of the federation a protest of the Klode selection on the grounds that he is not qualified for the work.

In opening the convention, Mrs. J. W. Carow, Madison, urged in her presidential address that greater emphasis be placed on character building in the home.

VOTE IS 65 TO 26

Austin Calls Administration Program 'Act Of Self-Defense'

Washington—(P)—Administration forces in the senate defeated today a motion to separate shipping provisions of the neutrality bill from the arms embargo repeal issue.

The vote was announced as 65 against to 26 for the motion.

Hitler Says Reich To Fight to End if Offer Is Refused

Swears 'No Power Ever Again Will Force Germany to Kneel'

Berlin.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler declared today that if Germany's "readiness for peace" was declined Germany was determined "to take up the fight and fight it out one way or the other."

"In a few weeks the state which thought it could threaten German interests most insolently (Poland) has been demolished—thanks to our soldiers and our military strategy," the fuhrer declared.

"What the future may bring we do not know. But of this we are certain: No power on earth ever again will be able to force Germany to her knees."

"They will not defeat us militarily, economically or politically."

Tremendous cheering greeted this declaration delivered in a speech in Berlin's huge sportsplaza opening the annual Nazi winter relief campaign.

Hitler declared Germany was determined to fight the war to the bitter end if necessary and once more laid the responsibility for continuing the struggle on the reich's adversaries.

Denies Disunion Rumors

The winter relief work, he demanded, must attain results never before achieved, not only because great tasks lie ahead created by the war, but also because the world must be shown, he said, that rumors of disunion within the reich are unfounded.

Germans must make common cause, the fuhrer said, "in battle, in victory and finally in peace."

"Germany must once and for all convince the world that it must be allowed to live undisturbed within its own living space."

"Before us stands the eternal life of our people," he said. "Nothing can shake us. Nothing can bring us to despair. On the contrary whatever the other world may choose, that it will get."

"The way ahead of us can not be more difficult than that behind us. In pursuing this way, we are strengthened by the fact that we have achieved a community of spirit in our nation."

The fuhrer, referring to his reichstag speech of last Friday, said he had given "expression to our readiness for peace."

Great Sacrifices

Hitler said the winter relief work would be devoted chiefly to the Red Cross, which practically would be merged with it.

"Let no one henceforth think of the greatness of his sacrifice, but of the sacrifices of those who gave their all," he said. "Compared to their sacrifices those at home are nothing."

"The decision of peace or war lies with others. We simply have a grim determination to fight."

"The day must come when Germany, without being interfered with by others, can within its living space, mould its own destiny and partake of the goods of the world to which it has a right."

"In this spirit, I open winter relief work of 1939-1940."

Hitler received a great burst of cheers when he entered the hall shortly before 4 o'clock.

Meanwhile, two new classes of Nazi reservists were called to the colors and Hitler's sweeping plan of German rearmament posed a fateful question for nearly 2,000,000 persons outside the reich.

The question was whether these people wanted to leave homes of long standing to come into the greater Germany which Hitler envisages.

Junior Class Play Cast Meets For First Reading Rehearsal

"Night of January 16th" Junior class play at Appleton High school, went into production Monday evening when the cast met for a reading rehearsal. The comedy-drama will be presented Friday evening, Nov. 17. Miss Kathryn Fralish, speech instructor, is directing.

The play centers around Karen Andre, who is being tried for the murder of Bjorn Faulkner. Her story and that of the defense is that she faked the suicide of this international financier to avoid bankruptcy and that she planned to escape with him to South America with a fortune in cash and credit. The prosecution states that she, with Larry Reagan, an ingenious perjurer, murdered Faulkner. The answer is not written in the last act, for each jury consists of members of the audience, determines the verdict. The play has two endings, one for a "guilty" and one for a "not guilty" verdict.

Cemetery Group Is Required to Insure Workers

Green Bay Association Loses When Court Reverses Decision

Madison.—(AP)—The supreme court today overruled the claim of the Woodlawn Cemetery association of Green Bay that it was not required to insure its employees under the unemployment compensation law.

The court reversed a decision of Dane County Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann which held in favor of the association and against the state industrial commission.

The commission filed suit against the association to collect $802.27 in contributions alleged to be due under the unemployment compensation act.

The association maintained it was a corporation organized and operated exclusively for charitable purposes and hence not an "employer" under the law and therefore not required to pay "contributions," and that it was exempt from all taxes under its incorporation law of 1858.

The association answered the commission's complaint, and the commission thereupon demurred to the association's answer.

Judge Hoppmann overruled the demurrer of the association, which appealed to the supreme court.

Loose on AAA Claim

The P. H. Orth company, a Wisconsin corporation, today lost in the supreme court in its suit to collect approximately $34,000 from the New Richmond Roller Mills company for processing taxes paid under the invalidated agricultural adjustment act.

Justices Sustained Circuit Judge George Thompson of St. Croix county in upholding a demurrer filed by the New Richmond company.

The taxes were paid by the Orth company on shipments of flour and were turned over to the federal government by the New Richmond company.

The plaintiff claimed the roller mills firm applied for a refund of the taxes and that it should be reimbursed for the total amount paid.

The supreme court decision, written by Justice Joseph Martin, said there was no claim the New Richmond company received a refund until the plaintiff had failed to show it did not shift the taxes to its customers, a condition held necessary to establish the right to a refund. The opinion also found there was no express agreement between the firms for repayment if the taxes were held unconstitutional.

Milwaukee Loses Suit

The city of Milwaukee lost in the state supreme court in its attempt to set aside an order of the public service commission permitting the town of Greenfield, in Milwaukee county, to operate as a water utility.

The city claimed an interest on the ground that the town expected to get its water supply from West Allis which buys its supply from Milwaukee and that the city might lose on the deal.

In a brief opinion written by Chief Justice Marvin B. Rosenberger, the supreme court affirmed the Dane county circuit court which dismissed the city's complaint by sustaining commission demurrers.

The supreme court reinstated a personal injury judgment for Viola DeBaker, Green Bay high school student, which had been set aside in Brown county circuit court.

The tribunal reversed Judge Henry Grass who dismissed the suit filed by a jury had awarded approximately $3,900 to Miss DeBaker and $500 to her parents.

The girl was injured May 14, 1938, in an automobile collision.

American Youth Congress Chairman Denies Communism Charges Made at Dies Quiz

Washington.—(AP)—Testimony before the Dies committee labeling as Communists a half-dozen American Youth Congress members who once took tea at the White House has brought a denial from William Hinckley, the congress chairman.

Hinckley said last night at New York that he was not a Communist nor a member of the Young Communist league, as Kenneth Goff had testified here yesterday. None of those at the tea with Mrs. Roosevelt two years ago, Hinckley added, "are or were Communists."

Goff, 25, who identified himself as a member of the Young Communist league's national committee, asserted that the youth congress was a "communist front" organization. Hinckley, on the other hand, said it is neither communist nor communistic.

Goff, one-time divinity student from Delavan, Wis., told the house committee investigating un-American activities that a letter from President Roosevelt to the youth congress in 1937 was used to get neo-Communists to join a "pilgrimage" to Washington that year.

Deny Statements

Testimony by Goff that two national board secretaries of the Y. W. C. A. belonged to the Young Communist league was denied at New York by the women, Rose Terlin and Rose Troiano. They also testified erroneously his statement that they had attended a communist training school.

The Dies committee after completing Goff's testimony, recessed until tomorrow. Chairman Dies (D-Texas) said testimony would be received at that time "from the most important witness the committee has heard."

Goff told the Dies committee yesterday that all the money collected by the communists for Spanish relief did not get to the refugees.

"I saw money for Spanish relief used by John Sekat to pay party office rent," Goff asserted, identifying Sekat as a Communist in Wisconsin.

(Previously Goff had told the committee of his part in trying to spread communism throughout Wisconsin, and that he was resigning from the Young Communist league and the Communist party at conclusion of his testimony.)

Says Girls Used

In describing the methods by which Y.C.L. members obtained new recruits, Goff declared that "good-looking young white girls" were used to bring in Negro members. After use of such tactics, he declared, the Y.C.L. had difficulty enticing Negro girls because of resentment toward the white girls.

Goff said that communists had "penetrated" in varying degrees the American League for Peace and Democracy, the World Youth congress, the Workers Alliance the side-step the war and carry on their vital commerce in the Baltic and North seas.

Sweden, aside from Finland and most immediately concerned in the expansion of soviet power, strengthened her defense forces and hastened construction of air-raid shelters.

Finland herself practiced air defense while a delegation headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, minister to Stockholm, entrained last night for Moscow in response to the Kremlin's invitation. As Finnish officials put it—to exchange opinions about political and economic problems. The problems were not specified.

Due Tomorrow

The Finnish party was expected to reach Moscow tomorrow morning.

The deliberation of the Finnish railway trip was contrasted with the speed of airplane travel adopted by representatives of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania in carrying out their negotiations at Moscow. Negotiations which resulted in broad military, naval and trade concessions to the U. S. S. R.

"Never shall our land bow before the foreign tyrant," sang the crowd at Helsinki station last night as the delegation set out. It was part of the national anthem of a people Russian-ruled until 1917. Paasikivi led the nation as premier when Finland was establishing her independence from Russia in 1918-1920.

Hundreds of patriotic Finns jammed the Helsinki station an hour before Paasikivi's departure. White tie wearing, Paasikivi shook hands with Prime Minister A. K. Gajander and then waved his hat at the throng.

The premier was asked for comment.

our nation and our people," then we should make no change in the neutrality act."

Senator Austin (R-Vt.) described the administration neutrality bill today as "an act of self-defense because it is designed to aid Great Britain and France."

"We must do everything we can to hasten the victory of the allies," he told reporters. "We do not need to ask whether this bill is neutral. We only need to know that it's an act of self-defense."

In order to protect our interests, we must make it possible for Great Britain and France to get supplies. That may be regarded as selfishness on our part, but at the same time it can be patriotic."

Austin, assistant minority leader, is one of a half-dozen Republican senators supporting the administration measure. It would repeal the embargo on arms sales to warring countries, which would have to pay cash (or get 90-day credits) for all American purchases. There would have to be transportation in foreign ships.

Administration circles were fighting a motion by Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) to recess the three days in order to give President Roosevelt a free hand to negotiate European peace.

Johnson told reporters: "This war couldn't and wouldn't go on if it was made clear that the United States stood for peace."

Helen Gilbert to Seek Divorce From Musician

Hollywood, Calif.—(AP)—Screen actress Helen Gilbert, formerly of Superior, Wis., said yesterday she probably would file suit within a week for divorce from Mischa Bakaleinikoff, musical director at Columbia studios.

"It was an amicable separation," she declared after friends disclosed they had parted last week. They were married three years ago. They appeared in a "Hardy family" picture with Mickey Rooney, and now, as her second film, the lead with Lew Ayres in "Dr. Kildare."

Stage Stars Interrupt Tour For Opening of U. W. Theater

Madison.—(AP)—Back with "fellow Wisconsinites" last night, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne brought a rollicking performance of "The Taming of the Shrew" to celebrate the formal opening of the University of Wisconsin's new million-dollar theater.

Interrupting an eastern road tour, the noted co-starring couple, who live on a farm in nearby Genesee Depot, returned for a three-day run here with the theater guild's version of William Shakespeare's classical comedy.

A capacity full-dress audience of 1,300 persons, many of whom paid $5 a seat, gave a rousing reception to the hometown boy and his English-born wife who are beginning their 15th year on the stage together.

After a dozen curtain calls, Lunt, grasping his wife's hand, told his "fellow Wisconsinites" it was an "honor and privilege" to help dedicate the addition to the Memorial union, student recreational center.

"You have done a great deal for the theater and Wisconsin," he said. "In these uncertain times one of the few institutions we can still believe in is the make-believe and this is the make-believe."

Later, the Lunts joined President and Mrs. C. A. Dykstra and numerous university officials at a reception in the theater lobby.

Lawrence Farrell, the company manager, revealed the Lunts were "donating" their services. Members of the cast are receiving their regular salaries. The university assumed the cost of transporting the cast from Washington, D. C., where the four opened last week.

The new unit was unveiled Sunday at ceremonies attended by its designer, Michael M. Hare, New York architect, and his theatrical consultant for the project, Lee Simonson.

An imposing structure of 105 rooms, the third wing of the Memorial union was revealed as fairly bursting with the latest equipment for stage and radio educational work, brightly-colored furnishings, striking indirect lighting, and extreme flowing ceilings.

It was financed through a WPA grant of $266,000, with the remainder furnished by a loan and gifts from alumni and townspeople. The loan will be repaid by a portion of regular student fees.

QUITs COMMUNISTS

Kenneth Goff (above), of Delavan, Wis., who identified himself as a leader of the Young Communist League, told the Dies committee in Washington that leaders boasted of having tea with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Goff told the committee he would resign from the League and from the Communist party at the end of his testimony. His letter of resignation was read into the records.

American Students Union, the Southern Negro Youth Congress, the Commonwealth Federation (in the Pacific northwest), Labor's Non-Partisan league, the Young Democrats, the CIO, some branches of the AFL, the American Jewish committee, organizations to aid Austrian and Spanish refugees and the International Workers Order. In some of them he said, the penetration had not been great but efforts were continuing.

Goff has but one leg. He told the committee he lost the limb in an automobile-trolley crash shortly after addressing an evening meeting to raise funds for Spanish refugees, at Sheboygan, Wis.

The next morning, he asserted, "the party" hired a lawyer and took charge of the case.

Goff said that his own wish was to go to trial in a suit for damages "but the party needed the money at the time and they told me to settle the case for the $5,000 that had been offered."

He said he followed this advice, the result being that the lawyer received a third of the money and other portions of it were used for Spanish refugee relief and for general purposes by the Y.C.L.

"About all I got out of it was a thousand bucks," Goff said.

D. C. Stephenson Fights Ailment

Klan Leader, Seeking New Trial, Has Gall Bladder Trouble

Noblesville, Ind.—(AP)—D. C. Stephenson, pudgy former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, fought a gall bladder ailment today while attorneys prepared briefs in his legal fight to obtain another trial on the murder charge of which he was convicted fourteen years ago.

Circuit Judge Cassius M. Gentry heard the oral arguments yesterday on Stephenson's demand for a new trial. He will rule Oct. 17.

Stephenson was convicted in 1925 of murder in the death of Madge Oberholzer, 29, statehouse stenographer. The state charged she took poison after Stephenson attacked her.

The pudgy ex-politician pounded on his cell door from midnight until 1 o'clock yesterday morning, he said before Sheriff Joseph Newby, whose quarters are some distance from Stephenson's cell.

Dr. Joe D. Sturdevant, who gave Stephenson a hypodermic injection and prescribed a fruit-juice diet, said if the former Klansman did not improve, he would have him taken to a hospital for an x-ray examination to determine whether an operation for gallstones is needed. Stephenson was better last night.

SUCCUMBS
Robert G. Elliott, executioner for five eastern states, died today at his home in New York. During his 13 years in that capacity he had executed more than 300 murderers.

Executioner of Over 300 Slayers Dies in New York

Robert G. Elliott Succumbs After Illness Since Last May

New York.—(AP)—Robert G. Elliott, official executioner for five eastern states, died today at his home in Richmond Hill, Queens.

Announcement of his death was made by his son, Robert G. Elliott, Jr. The executioner, who was 65, had been ill since last May. The cause of death was given as coronary embolism. Elliott had spent part of the summer in a sanatorium.

Among the persons he put to death were Bruno Richard Hauptmann, kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby; and Sacco and Vanzetti, convicted in Massachusetts of murder and the central figures in a world protest.

Elliott's condition improved so much in recent weeks that he returned to his home on Oct. 2. That day, his son said, he took a walk around the block and visited with old friends.

The son said he believed the exercise was too much for him because he suffered a relapse, almost immediately afterward and since that time had been under the care of two physicians.

Foe of Death Penalty

Elliott was an outspoken foe of the legalized killing from which he derived his livelihood.

"It doesn't do any good," he said repeatedly.

Elliott had spun the rheostat dials of death for more than 300 murderers during his 13-year career, including Ruth Snyder and her illicit lover, Judd Gray, and "Two-Gun" Crowley, notorious bandit.

A taciturn man who kept his calling a secret even from his children, Elliott showed signs of fraying nerves in the months preceding his final illness.

In October, 1928, he complained to the Massachusetts prison officials that the electric chair, the oldest in the nation, was dangerous and that he "couldn't breathe easily" for fear of death when he pulled the switch.

As America's best-known executioner—performing his work in New York's Sing Sing, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut prisons—Elliott had seen all types of condemned prisoners go to their death.

"It's hardest executing the women," he said after throwing the switch on Ruth Snyder in 1928. A few weeks later he suffered a nervous breakdown.

Elliott's house in Queens, where he lived with his wife and two children, was wrecked by a bomb in 1923, shortly after he had executed Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts, and until his death a police booth was erected in his yard with a policeman to guard him.

Junior Class Play Cast Meets For First Reading Rehearsal

"Night of January 16th" Junior class play at Appleton High school, went into production Monday evening when the cast met for a reading rehearsal. The comedy-drama will be presented Friday evening, Nov. 17. Miss Kathryn Fralish, speech instructor, is directing.

The play centers around Karen Andre, who is being tried for the murder of Bjorn Faulkner. Her story and that of the defense is that she faked the suicide of this international financier to avoid bankruptcy and that she planned to escape with him to South America with a fortune in cash and credit. The prosecution states that she, with Larry Reagan, an ingenious perjurer, murdered Faulkner. The answer is not written in the last act, for each jury consists of members of the audience, determines the verdict. The play has two endings, one for a "guilty" and one for a "not guilty" verdict.

Name F. C. Klode Director of New Welfare Agency

Department Consolidates Correctional Public Aid Services

Madison.—(AP)—Frank C. Klode, of Milwaukee, former chairman of the board of control, was named director late yesterday of the state department of public welfare, an agency created by the 1939 legislature to consolidate correctional and public aid services.

R. J. Everhardt, of Whitewater, president of the public welfare board, announced Klode was chosen unanimously following consideration of several candidates. He added:

"The position of director of the state department of public welfare requires primarily the services of a practical, experienced administrator. When this ability is coupled with a sympathetic understanding of the problem of public welfare which is evidenced in the life and activities of Mr. Klode, we are happy to name him as the choice of the state board of public welfare as its director of the department."

Klode, who is 74, was appointed for an indefinite term. He will receive a salary of not more than $7,500 a year, and will name five assistants to supervise divisions of public welfare: mental hygiene, corrections, child welfare and administration and research.

The board of control to which Klode was appointed early in Governor Heil's administration, went out of existence with the organization of the new board. He succeeded John J. Hannan, retired, as board president.

Representatives of seven organizations, all of which had backed the organization program as a method of improving the state's welfare setup urged the welfare board to consider only personal qualifications in selecting the director. The groups include the Parent Teachers association, Wisconsin Conference of Social Work, American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, Wisconsin Society of Mental Hygiene, League of Women Voters, and Wisconsin State Employees Association.

Asks Improvement In Probation Plan

Waupun Warden Offers Suggestions for Juvenile System in State

Waupun.—(AP)—Warden John Burke of the state prison, expanding statements made in a speech at Milwaukee Sunday night, asserted today he believed the juvenile system should be extended and improved throughout Wisconsin.

Only 20 or 25 of the state's 72 counties have juvenile probation systems, and of this number only several are functioning in the proper manner, Burke said he was informed.

He urged extension of the work into the other state counties and regeneration of present activities to replace what he termed the hit-and-miss methods now frequently employed.

Stressing the importance of hiring persons well trained and qualified to direct the work, Warden Burke warned against attempting to build character through coercion and fear, adding that it appeared some juvenile probation officers "seem to be chosen for their ability to scare children."

He commended the type of work now being carried on in several counties and urged the others to follow suit to help bring Wisconsin's juvenile probation system up to the high level of the state's adult probation system, which he termed one of the finest in the nation.

Investigate Railroad Accident in Indiana

Bloomfield, Ind.—(AP)—An Illinois Central train of tank cars bound east from the Robinson, Ill., oil and gas field was wrecked four miles west of here last night.

Eight cars were derailed and track torn up. Six cars rolled over an embankment. Two turned over on the right of way.

A wreck train was sent from Effingham and Bloomington, Ill., and an investigation was started.

A passenger train bound for Indianapolis was held here overnight.

Merchants Will Decorate Stores For Homecoming

Chamber of Commerce to Provide Flares to Illuminate Avenue

Cooperation of Appleton merchants in the Lawrence college homecoming program this weekend was promised at a meeting of representatives of the student body and retail merchants Monday afternoon in the chamber of commerce office.

Merchants will be asked to decorate their store windows, using blue and white, the Lawrence college colors, and blue and white, the Lawrence colors. Honorary ribbons will be awarded to the merchants who have the most interesting decorations. The homecoming slogan this year, "K. O. the Carls," may be used in the decorations.

Present at the meeting were Wayne Jones and Clark Teel, representing the retail merchants; Jack White, Chicago, representing the Lawrence college homecoming committee; and Miss Mary White, Appleton, representing the student body; John R. Riedl and Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

To illuminate Avenue Blue flares for illuminating College avenue during the pajama parade of freshmen and sophomore students Friday night will be provided by the chamber. Students will parade after the "pep" meeting and expect to reach the avenue about 8:45.

Arrangements also were made for Lawrence students to tell the story of homecoming at luncheon club meetings this week.

Judges for the float parade and the merchant and fraternity house decorations, part of the Lawrence college homecoming program, were announced today by Robert Leverenz, homecoming chairman.

The house and store decorations will be judged at 5 o'clock Friday evening by Frank Fischer, Mrs. Alden Megrew and LaVahn K. Maesch, and the float parade at 10 o'clock Saturday morning by Dr. Howard Taylor, Dr. Richard Cummings and Miss Anna Jones.

The weekend festivities will get underway Friday morning with a pep meeting at Lawrence Memorial chapel. In place of the orchestra, that usually played, the Lawrence band will perform. The committee hopes to start a new tradition by having the college band, rather than some outside group, provide the music.

Annual Bonfire A pep meeting and bonfire at 8 o'clock Friday night on the river bank back of Science hall will continue the celebration. The feature of the meeting will be the burning of the Carleton effigy, but there also will be songs, cheers and speeches by coaches, football players and alumni. John Riedl will speak for the townspeople and James Straubel, Green Bay, former Lawrence athlete, for the alumni. After the meeting the college band will lead the annual torchlight pajama parade down College avenue. Arrangements have been made for the students to "crash" the Appleton theater after the parade.

Another parade, of more formal nature, is scheduled for 10 o'clock Saturday morning. In it six sororities and six fraternities will enter floats, competing with each other for the trophies which will be awarded.

The highlight of the homecoming weekend is the Lawrence-Carleton football game at 2:15 Saturday afternoon at Whiting field. Between the halves there will be music and marching by the college band. After the game the Lawrence Women's association will entertain at open house at Brokaw hall.

en's association will entertain at open house at Brokaw hall. Next event on the program is an alumni banquet Saturday evening at the Conway hotel. At 9 o'clock the same evening, students, alumni, faculty members and townspeople will celebrate victory or try to forget defeat, at the homecoming dance at Alexander gymnasium. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of the house decorations contest and the float parade during the dance.

High School Will Hold Grid Dance

Event Will Follow Appleton-Green Bay East Football Game

Appleton High school will open its social season Saturday, Oct. 28, with a dance in the gymnasium sponsored by the student council.

The dance will be a "homecoming hop", following the afternoon game between Appleton and Green Bay East high schools.

On the steering committee are Elizabeth Wood, Genevieve Schaefer, Joseph Marston, Mary O'Keefe and Bud Thomas. Miss Margaret Ritchie, biology instructor, is faculty adviser.

Advertising for the dance will be planned by Elizabeth Atcherson, Ethel Rademacher, Ann Smith, Billie Kolb and Sylvester Bayer. Peter Giovannini, art supervisor, is faculty sponsor. Miss Ruth McKenney, head of the speech department, is assisting the orchestra committee whose members are Robert Sager, Robert Wilch, Ben Rohan and Margaret Lally.

Doors for the evening will be Robert Delman, Robert Williams, Charles Rollin and Don Smith. William C. Pickett, physical education instructor, and Harry Cameron, manual arts instructor, will assist. On the clean-up crew are Olin Meade, John Boon, Jeanne Ruhling, David Bliss, Pat Connelly and Tom Nolan. Wallace Cole, chemistry instructor, will supervise. Appointments to the committees were made by Sager, president of the student council.

Farley to Decide Delegation Vote At Convention

But Postmaster General Has Not Yet Determined His Course

BY W. B. BAGSDALE
New York, Oct. 10.—James A. Farley holds the answer to which way the New York state delegation will go at the next Democratic national convention.

But Farley, himself, doesn't know yet which way to turn. He doesn't know how far the European war has gone toward whipping up sentiment for a third term. His close friends say that back in July, before he sailed for Europe, he had the word of President Roosevelt that the chief executive would not run again. But the political picture has changed since then. Whether it has altered, or will alter, the presidential mind, Farley does not know.

Far-fetched as it seems to many some of those close enough to the situation to know what they are talking about say that the possibility of a break between the president and his topmost political adviser still is a factor to be considered. They are on good terms now better than they have been in months. But the situation between Farley and the president, and for that matter the feeling between the president and the southern and middle-western Democratic dissenters from his domestic policies, is more of a truce during a national emergency than anything resembling a permanent peace between the two wings of the Democratic party.

Neutrality Issue
The president, through Farley's advice has adopted a more conciliatory course toward the southerners who had broken away from him.

A part of this course is determined by the fact that the administration is anxious to get the neutrality program through congress. Whether after the extra session is over, the conciliatory methods will be continued remains to be seen. If it does, the present truce may move into the stage of a definite armistice and finally, into a permanent peace in the ranks of the Democratic party—so far as any such peace can be permanent.

All of this will play a part in determining what Farley does with regard to the New York state delegation. New York is Mr. Roosevelt's home state. Farley, chosen by himself, is not only the chairman of the Democratic national committee but chairman of the New York state Democratic committee.

Powerful Factor
The bald, genial, straight-forward chairman can say the word that will send more than one state delegation into a quick step for himself or most any other candidate he might name. In spite of the fact that New York is the president's own state this is said by the best informed New Yorkers to apply as strongly, or more so, to New York than to any other state.

Those who profess to know say Farley is torn between a deep-seated loyalty for Mr. Roosevelt and fear that a third term would mean a return to power of the extreme New Dealers. Any normal man who deals in politics thinks of the presidency. So does Farley. But his party spirit runs more deeply than that of many. He would be willing to forget personal ambitions to find a winning candidate for his party.

Two very strong factors work into the situation. The president, the anti-New Dealer and Farley are wholly aware of both on them. If Farley were to break with Mr. Roosevelt and team up with either Vice President Garner or Secretary Hull, the combined influence of these forces might easily be strong enough to prevent Mr. Roosevelt from either getting the nomination himself, or for any other man he might choose.

Need Roosevelt Help
Yet, if this came about and Mr. Roosevelt refused to support the nominee of the convention, all agree the Democratic nominee would have small chance of winning. The Republicans in New York are no less cognizant of the threat of a third term which is rising from the Democrats out over the states. Already, whispering can be heard: "Is Roosevelt going to run again, and if he does will the Republican nomination be worth anything?"

That questioning of the worth of the nomination has not penetrated the outer walls of the office of Thomas E. Dewey, the New York county prosecutor, however. There the feeling still is that if the New Deal, or a large share of it, is wrong in principle a mere war will not keep the American people from voting against it.

Support for Dewey
And Dewey dominates the Republican picture in New York. The most experienced political calculators in New York say he will have the bulk of the New York state delegation to the Republican convention. He might have all of it, these men say, but for the possible

Hunters Find Weather Too Warm in Fremont Vicinity

Fremont — Scores of out-of-town and local duck hunters who have trekked to marshes surrounding Partridge lake and along the Wolf river at Fremont the past week came back with nothing but complaints. However, it is stated by experienced sportsmen the supply this year is the best in a number of seasons, but the weather has been too warm. With a few cold days, it is expected there will be more than only a few birds landed. An added attraction for the sportsmen are the fine catches of white bass and pickerel are being made on the Wolf and Rat rivers.

Mr. and Mrs. William Greening entertained a party of relatives and friends Sunday in honor of the birthday anniversary of their daughter Genevieve. A 6 o'clock dinner was served after which cards were played.

The regular meeting of the Fremont Conservation league will be held Thursday evening in the village hall.

Mrs. John Drews, Mrs. Mary M. Zuehlke, and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Drews and Miss Ruth Hoerning of New London were visitors with the former son Lorn Drews at the Plymouth hospital, Sunday. Mr. Drews, who was severely injured Oct. 4 in an accident at Kiel, is much improved.

Mrs. Herman Samuel of Anaheim, Calif., was a guest Saturday at the Frank Looker home.

Miss Norma Averill, accompanied by Mrs. Verna Radtke, Weyauwega, attended the annual Alpha Chi homecoming banquet of the Oshkosh State Teachers' College, Oshkosh, Saturday evening. Miss Averill participated in two readings as part of the evening entertainment.

Reuben Bartel and Robert Averill spent Sunday with friends at Madison.

Various Theories Arise in Warning For Ship's Safety

Undisturbed Arrival Will Be Good News to Berlin, Washington

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — The mysterious warning given by the German admiralty to the United States government that the American steamer Iroquois would be blown up under circumstances such as destroyed the British steamer Athenia has caused a stir which will not be ended when the American ship has reached the United States.

From the beginning, there have been two theories—one that a submarine would attack the Iroquois, and the other that an internal explosion, resulting possibly from a time bomb, would sink the ship.

The government ordered warships and coast guard vessels to meet the Iroquois at sea, which ought to establish once and for all whether submarine attack was contemplated. But the presence of these patrol vessels would not be able to prevent an internal explosion on the Iroquois resulting from a bomb.

Orders have been sent to the master of the Iroquois to search his ship for explosives, but it is a difficult task to perform at sea, especially since bombs could have been concealed in trunks or baggage loaded in the hold of the ship. It is not an easy task to go through every trunk and to dig among the numerous crevices of a ship to locate a bomb.

The suspicion that a bomb may have been planted on the Iroquois either in an English or Irish port, fits in somewhat with the fact that the Germans officially warned that the Iroquois was carrying a time bomb. The German espionage system discovered the plot and did not wish to reveal its sources of information, the admiralty in Berlin would be quick to pass on the information to the American embassy, if only for the reason that such an explosion would be blamed on a German submarine.

Sabotage System
There have been in the last few months several bomb outrages in Great Britain in which time bombs have been planted in railway stations supposedly by Irish terrorists, but nobody here can imagine why any Irish faction would seek to injure an American passenger ship. There is a possibility also that the bombs planted in England have not been the work of Irish terrorists at all, but part of the German sabotage system. The extent to which sabotage is playing a part in the present war can be gleaned only occasionally from dispatches telling of mysterious explosions in London, or from the fact that countries, not long ago, explosions in both German and British munition plants were recorded in the press and were believed to have been caused by planted bombs.

American citizens who have friends aboard the Iroquois have been assured by the government that the ship is probably the "safest at sea," but this is doubtless based on the supposition that a submarine attack could hurt the Iroquois, or that a rigid enough search has been made aboard the vessel for possible explosives.

The circumstances under which the German warning was given have aroused in Britain the cry that the Germans have criminal knowledge of an attack on an American vessel. But, looking at it solely from the German point of view, if they are innocent and believe the Iroquois is going to be sunk, they would not hesitate a moment to bear the stigma of such criticism until such time as they are able to disclose fully the sources of their information.

Various theories are being circulated here to the effect that the whole thing is a hoax designed to frighten American shipping and to keep Americans from traveling on the high seas irrespective of the outcome of the embargo fight. Another theory is that an attempt is being made to cover up the Athenia disaster. It is significant that while the Athenia was sunk several weeks ago, the American government has not protested to Berlin and details have not been disclosed which would make it absolutely certain that a submarine did the damage. Affidavits have been received from persons aboard the Athenia to the effect that they saw a submarine, but for some strange reason, the American government has not actually accepted that explanation as fact. It may well be that there are facts which may bear out the theory of an internal explosion, but this would not necessarily mean that the Germans are right in their fantastic assertion that the British did it, or that the British are right in supposing that the Germans planted the bomb.

It is conceivable that another set of alien influences have been put to work on bomb sabotage and the voyage of the Iroquois probably will clear up that aspect one way or the other before many days have passed.

If the Iroquois is damaged by a time-bomb due to explode when the ship nears the east coast of the United States, the whole world will demand further details from Berlin, and an incident of grave proportions between Germany and the United States may arise unless explanations are forthcoming. The best news Berlin and Washington can have is the safe arrival of the Iroquois in port this week.

Slant of Citizens Abroad Changed Since Prohibition

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York.—In the matter of the distressed Americans abroad who have been having such trouble finding ship room for the voyage home, the background of the picture needs retouching to recall that during prohibition Americans bound abroad to catch up on their drinking avoided American ships and built up the passenger trade of European countries at the expense of the American service. Any flag but the Stars and Stripes was good enough for most American travelers then and the European nations used money which they owed the United States to build boats to catch their trade. In justice to the tourists it must be allowed that they were sick of the noble experiment and made a pathetic spectacle in their attempts at nonchalance as they waited for the steward to rattle the key in the door of the lounge by way of intimating that they had now crossed the three-mile limit and could now get drunk on the real McCoy. From time to time the stewards fudged a little and would pop corks before the ships tied loose and a merchant going abroad to sell a load of hides or buy caviar for the suburban trade at home would discover himself attended by enough loving friends to swing an election, all with their tongues hanging out like red neckties and all snuffing the close air of the passageways for the fumes of martini and scotch. When time came to shove off they would come yodeling down the gangplank picked to the eyeballs and vowing to sweep some money together right soon and go abroad themselves, and not on any American ship, either, but on one of those French, British, Italian or German boats, or possibly a Dutchman. Not only citizens in private life, but officials and members of their families favored the European lines and the American service was so badly neglected that just now, when an emergency comes, it is obvious that the vast majority of the stranded landmen must have gone over on foreign boats by choice.

Adopted Policy of Cheating on U. S. Ship
True, a policy of cheating was adopted on the American ships, but now and again some bloodless Heraklides of the dry political persuasion would rear back on his hind legs in congress and utter a bawl of moral outrage at this wanton violation of the sacred amendment in plain sight of Old Glory. The lid would then go down again with a loud clank of publicity. The result was that Americans could be sure of getting a decent drink on their own ships and rather than take a chance avoided them altogether. The United States boats lost reputation with their own people and some upsetting experiences with ribald stewards helped to unsteady the confidence of those who were not primarily interested in getting tight with the least possible delay but only wanted comfort and a reasonable degree of safety.

In the course of this fun-spell the European ships got almost all of publicity both in text and pictures because the celebrities who made print were aboard them. The result was that Americans could be sure of getting a decent drink on their own ships and rather than take a chance avoided them altogether. The United States boats lost reputation with their own people and some upsetting experiences with ribald stewards helped to unsteady the confidence of those who were not primarily interested in getting tight with the least possible delay but only wanted comfort and a reasonable degree of safety.

Scene of Heavy Fighting
Ahead of her is a long, hazardous route into the embattled corridor, for Torun, where the family has lived since her marriage 13 years ago, was the scene of heavy fighting in the early days of the war. But to an anxious mother, news of two children is much more important than any incidental wartime dangers.

In Shawano county, she has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bohman. Mrs. Bohman is her mother. When Mrs. Bohman married her present husband and came to this country 26 years ago, Frieda, a daughter by a former marriage, stayed with her grandparents in West Prussia—her birthplace—and there she lived most of her life until she married Chester Kadzdz in Torun 13 years ago.

The husband, a Polish army regular for the last 20 years, was an officer in the anti-aircraft division "Weaponmaster" is the best English translation of his army rating—and this summer, in July, he completed a special training course which was to make him a "Chief Weaponmaster"—apparently equivalent to a first sergeant. He was stationed on active service at Torun when she left to visit her mother in America for the first time in 26 years. The children, Irene, 12,

The central conference of the American Lutheran church which is being held today and Wednesday at St. John Lutheran church, Gillett, is being attended today by the Rev. E. C. Reuter, pastor of First English Lutheran church, Sunday night the Rev. Mr. Reuter preached at a mission festival at Emmanuel church at Brandon, and Wednesday and Thursday he will attend a district finance committee meeting at Milwaukee.

The first of a series of weekly instructions for high school students will be held Wednesday night at St. Joseph's parish hall. Following the instructions each Wednesday there will be a dance for the young people in the upper hall.

Two groups of St. Therese church will sponsor a potato pancake supper and card party Wednesday night at the parish hall. The recently organized young men's group of the parish will elect its officers at a meeting at 8:30 the evening.

Professor To Talk
The second of a series of lectures on the current European situation by Dr. Louis C. Baker, professor of modern languages at Lawrence college, will take place at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the little theater of the church. The second school of missions will be held Thursday night with movies on India following a picnic supper at 6:15.

Warren Beck, professor of English at Lawrence college, will lecture on "The Adventures of the Young Man" by John Dos Passos at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at First Congregational church. Dr. Louis C. Baker will be speaker at a supper meeting of C. Y. W. at 6:15 this evening at the church.

Sunday school teachers and officers of Trinity English Lutheran church will meet this evening at the church, and the sewing circle will meet Wednesday at the home of

Propaganda in Trick Forms Is Most Insidious, Clapper Says

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—The propaganda that is most likely to trap us is not that which bears the label "made in Germany" or "passed by British censor." If it is labeled, you know what kind of poison it is and are guided accordingly. The propaganda that reaches its mark is not labeled.

This neutrality discussion is full of unlabelled propaganda—not made in Germany nor in Great Britain, but home-made. I mean the little single words nestled in easy-flowing sentences. They slip into the mind and tell us, without our knowing it, what to think.

If you read that Senator Windbag is a "pacifist" you think there is something wrong with him. The term "pacifist" has an unfavorable connotation. But describe Senator Windbag as "peace-loving" and you think of him more favorably. You can love peace and be all right but if you are a pacifist, then something ought to be done with you.

That is a rough sample of the use of words in the most insidious and effective way. All writing people and all speakers employ this technique in controversial argument. You can't stop it but as a reader or listener you can be on your guard. Stuart Chase wrote a stimulating book on this subject, exposing the technique. He called it "The Tyranny of Words." It shows how all of us are the unconscious slaves of words and how we allow them to do our thinking for us. The book is nearly two years old but was never more timely than today.

Pick up an editorial about neutrality legislation. You read that the bill would throw a "Chinese wall" around the United States. You remember from your school days that China built a wall and thus cut off from the world, decayed. Theodore Roosevelt, goading Wilson into a preparedness program, said Wilson was trying to "chinate" the United States. So when you read that the neutrality bill would build a "Chinese wall" around this country, your reaction is that this legislation is unwise.

Insulate Is Better Word Than "Chinese Wall"

But say that the neutrality legislation seeks to "insulate" the United States from Europe. The insulation seems scientific and the best homes have it, so the legislation must be all right—especially if you slip in the phrase, as I did just to, about "Europe's war." That, too, is a trick, to make you think unconsciously that this war is none of our business and therefore the further we stay away from it the better.

So when somebody says the cash and carry provision sets up a policy of "scuttle and run" he is trying to make you say automatically to ing Americans not to sail on British munition carriers which were in danger of being torpedoed, President Wilson said that to prevent such exercise of American rights would be a "national humiliation" and that "national honor" would not permit it. When we were neutral in the last war, we lost some 56,000 tons of shipping. We went into the war to avenge these losses and proceeded to lose about 400,000 tons.

If American citizens stand guard against these trick words and try to think in terms of realities, in realities of lives and property and of what is to the best interest of this nation, we shall at least have a clearer understanding of what is at stake.

Two Outagamie County Farms Get New Owners

Two farms changed hands in recent real estate transactions. Martin Conradt has purchased the 80-acre farm of John Heidemann, Jr., in the town of Bovina, and Arthur E. Scheibe has purchased the 70-acre farm of Robert W. Scheibe in the town of Freedom. The realty transfers have been filed with Stephen Peckers, Outagamie county register of deeds.

The following transfers also have been filed:

F. J. Harwood to Lawrence Bauer, a lot in the Sixteenth ward, Appleton.

Caroline Collins to Mary E. Jensen, a parcel of land in the First ward, Kaukauna.

Jack Babbitt to Meta A. Erdmann, a lot in the Twelfth ward, Appleton.

Chinese Refugees in Flight From Shekhi

Macao—More than 15,000 Chinese civilian refugees poured into this Portuguese colony Monday following the Japanese capture of Shekhi, Pearl river delta city 25 miles north of here.

Refugees reported the Japanese were extending their control over Kwangtung's Chungshan district after the fall of Shekhi, despite resistance of homeguards led by District Magistrate Chang Hui-Chang. Shekhi fell yesterday after Chinese militiamen had beaten off repeated sorties by the Japanese during the last six months. A two-day Japanese air attack was reported to have smashed the city's resistance.

Straight Thinking Can Keep U. S. Out of War, Wiley Says

Chicago—(AP)—The United States, like Lief Erickson, must accept the challenge to sail on uncharted seas to preserve the heritage of Christianity and liberty, United States Senator Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) said Monday night.

Urging that straight thinking would keep America out of future wars, the senator at a Lief Erickson day ceremony in Lane Technical high school suggested that a new course outlined in his war referendum proposal be charted.

Under that proposed constitutional amendment, pending in the senate foreign relations committee, congress could declare war in cases of non-invasion only if a majority of voters in a national referendum approved, he said.

"Lief Erickson was a character who didn't live in the past," Wiley declared. "He lived in the eternal present. He accepted the challenges of the present and went out to meet them head-on."

"He knew in his day as we must know in our day, that while these are challenging times, civilization is not in the death throes but in the birth pangs of new life. "Let each American read and understand the lesson of his life and there will be no underlings among us. May we too continue to seek undiscovered continents of national and international law and order, peace and good will."

Lief Erickson today, Wiley said, would accept the challenge to find a solution to the capital-labor problem, and the challenge of ever-increasing centralization of power which "is the road to fascism and nazism and communism."

ELEPHANT GOING BLIND

Jessie, one of the most famous zoo elephants in the world, is rapidly going blind at the Sydney, Australia, zoo and may not live long. Jessie was presented to the Sydney zoo by the King of Siam 57 years ago and has given rides to about 60,000 children every year. She is 77. Last year thousands of little ones attended her birthday party, which included a huge birthday cake.

Secretary Hull Lauds Conference Results

Washington—(AP)—Secretary Hull Monday praised the results of the inter-American conference concluded last week at Panama in welcoming a delegation of Latin American women.

The delegation, here under the auspices of the People's Mandate committee, will make a six-weeks' tour of 40 cities in the United States.

Hull said the Panama conference had proved unusually satisfying because there was no thought of ill will or friction, and all the delegates concentrated on methods of cooperation and promotion of peace.

He added the hope that the conference would not be the last such effort.

Blood transfusion was used to save the life of a valuable Aberdeen Angus bull in the Transvaal, the sick animal receiving about one and one-half gallons of blood from a bull of the same breed, and recovering in two days.

WHO CAN FORGET HANFSTAENGL?

Ernst Franz Sedgwick Hanfstaengl is not likely to be forgotten. He is the former personal friend and supporter of Hitler, who, as a German, is now in an English concentration camp, and happy at that.

The public will remember Hanfstaengl because of his difficult name. But he deserves remembrance as one of those jovial hearty Teutons who wouldn't hurt a sparrow but had a good word and a bit of a lift for all.

His history since the World war shows the unhappiness of international marriages and the hardships inflicted upon one like him, called Putzi by his colleagues, whose mother was an American and whose father was a German and whose life was divided between the two countries, with his citizenship in Germany and his mind uncertain between the traditions that went with his father's name and the freedom that he saw in America.

Putzi was put through Harvard and then went to college in Munich. He could play the piano like Tommy the Cork strums the guitar. He sang and he told stories that in his telling of them took on new rolls of laughter. In his eye there was no glint of the fanatic. His hand simply could not have signed an order creating a concentration camp.

Fate put Putzi in the Munich Putsch in 1923. Fate put Hitler in his home around that time. Fate made him a member of Hitler's entourage, and his long fingers at the piano helped clear the furrows in the Fuehrer's brow after storm tossed recitations from Mein Kampf.

Putzi shone in a scholarly, polished way but when the Goerings and the Goebels talked about tearing people literally to pieces he probably could not conceal the apprehension in his eyes at the mere thought of anything inhuman. Just exactly what happened not even Putzi has ever told. But one fine day, and perhaps just in time, he hid himself with his family to a Munich airfield so as to get out of Germany just as fast as speed could take him. He never returned. His son is now at Harvard, an American citizen. Putzi has been trying to get citizenship here too. Certainly he is very welcome.

When he comes here American publishers can be depended upon to induce him to write an account of his break with Hitler. Perhaps those who know Putzi well could imagine what occurred. For the man who grows up with a god can only see the feet of clay and it is likely that Putzi, a little dumbfounded at the way Hitler was constructed into a fetish, may have used some blunt American expressions to stop the process.

If, perchance, he had said some day, "Adolf, what do all these monkeyshines mean, you don't really take yourself seriously, do you?" it is understandable why the trains weren't fast enough to get him out of the land.

You must never laugh at a god however irrepressible appears the disposition to do so. For gods may provoke fear but never humor; and laughter is their finish.

CHANGES IN AMERICA

In 1889 with a population of 63 millions this country supported two million life insurance policies. Today with a little more than twice that population there are 125 million policies in existence covering 65 million people, the average policy holder having two policies.

And 50 years ago today we had approximately 500,000 students in our thousands of high schools throughout the country. Today we have five million.

These two items put together speak a great sermon of progress, material progress and intellectual progress, the two kinds of progress that are so interdependent.

The life insurance policies expose pools of billions of dollars in which practically every adult in the country, and many of the children, are participants. The enrollment at our high schools uncovers another pool of great wealth, the richness to be found in education and the safety that may be expected from a public mind that is taught to reason.

Occasionally shadows flit across the country and gloom moves in like a sticky fog from off the tides. But it is good to remember that America has developed materially just as it has developed intellectually. Even with war clouds on the horizon and war drums rumbling near at home the nation's books show some splendid assets among the people.

And there will be greater ones if the menace of armed conflict be successfully dispelled.

FAVORITES OF JUSTICE

About ten years ago two gay young bloods down in Georgia, sons of well-to-do families, started shooting store and service station owners as part of the ritual of their holdups.

They really didn't need the money although they lived the life of Riley. Checks from home were frequent and generous. But they liked the life, and particularly the shocked look in men's eyes whom they had shot.

In due time they were convicted and sentenced to be hanged. But their well-to-do relatives were able to weep much louder and splash their tears much more audibly than those who had precarious lives brought up some poor white trash or colored boys who had gotten out of hand. So, of course, their sentence was commuted to life imprisonment and they came to live upon a convict farm much in the manner of a duke who ruled an estate.

One of them, Gallogly, was permitted to marry, having discovered in college a young woman as shallow as himself. He, with his wife, has just effected an escape. Their plans somehow must have miscarried because if they intend to spend a good season of the year up in Wisconsin they should start this way in June.

Blame for such a hideous mishandling of justice cannot be visited upon the parents of these children. Their heartstrings, acting in a perfectly natural manner, induced them to obtain such softening of the law's course and such privileges as they could. The blame rests solely upon public officialdom that excuses even the sheep-killing dog if asked to view him during a period of good behavior.

The Georgia case is apparently no different than Loeb and Leopold in Chicago, also the sons of wealthy families, also killers just for a thrill. Permitting them to live never did anyone any good, least of all themselves.

Why shouldn't the rule apply that the pardons and commutations should go to those who had the least opportunity in life instead of those who had the most? Why soften the law's demands for those who shed only crocodile tears?

IROQUOIS CARRIES A SHADOW

The word Iroquois has so often brought to mind savage or dispiriting memories that it was surprising to learn that an ocean liner so named was bringing 600 dejected Americans home from Europe.

Considering the fact that Iroquois tribes were known as both mean and persistent fighters and that the Iroquois theatre holocaust at Chicago took hundreds of lives, it might be thought appropriate for Lucifer to take up a station in the ocean and select such a named vessel for his maleficent spirits to destroy.

But the charge by Grand Admiral Raeder that the enemies of Germany were about to sink this vessel in order to infuriate American public opinion is wholly lacking in any evidence to support it. The claim that the Iroquois would be sunk by the same agencies that destroyed the Athenia may be accepted, but who were they? The charge itself is an unusually fantastic one. It is possible, of course. But in spite of the present orders to the German armed forces to fight with the gallantry of crusaders we cannot wipe out the past, and in World War No. 1 there were orders to "sink without trace" so as to avoid America's insistence that warning precede torpedoing in order that crews might be saved. More over the government of which Herr Hitler is the head is likely to secure about the same reputation for veracity as its leader.

England, it has been established, would readily exaggerate and falsify in order to secure America's aid. But no evidence has been forthcoming that it would commit an atrocity of this character.

Why does not Raeder detail his supporting facts?

WHEN IS THANKSGIVING ANYWAY?

The uncertainty and confusion concerning Thanksgiving is largely attributable, we believe, to some pretty small political potatoes.

The question should never be so much the day as the union and the spirit devoted to it. Even though the President is mistaken in attributing a business advantage to stretching out the distance between Thanksgiving and Christmas there can certainly be no disadvantage to following his idea. The turkey will taste as good one day as another.

The tendency to issue proclamations that has swept on to the mayors of cities probably will stop there. And it seems appropriate that the mayor should issue a proclamation to straighten the present disorder and that each community act as a unit to suit its own convenience and special circumstances.

MODEL TOWNS FOR CHINA

Model towns are to be constructed on the outskirts of seven North China cities if the five-year housing plan of the Peking Government is carried out. The project will alleviate the housing shortage felt by the Japanese going to North China to settle. About 2,000 houses will be built this year in the western suburbs of Peking on a plot donated to the North China Real Estate Company by the Government. This sub-division is expected to house 250,000 people when completed. Similar projects are planned for Tientsin and in Tangku at the mouth of the Pei River where a factory zone has been mapped. At Tientsin the British and French concessions will feel the effects of the new rival development.

American production of cotton increased 50-fold between 1800 and the Civil war.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—There is an argument for those who claim many people are sadists. It is the Odditorium, catch-all of strange and shuddery sights, that has opened on Broadway in a building which for years housed a nightclub. Here, from 10 a. m. until an hour after midnight, are paraded that strain of human society called freaks—men and women who earn livings by apparent defiance of pain. I sat there the other afternoon, holding myself in my seat only with the greatest effort. It may be I am a baby, or it may be that I'm only human.

A man came out, stripped to the waist; "the man without a stomach." By controlling his abdominal muscles he could create a deep cavity where his stomach should have been. He threw his shoulders out of joint and brought his spinal column forward to the front of his body. Every one stayed in his seat during this exhibition, but some women turned their heads.

Another man fastened hooks to his eyelids and lifted articles suspended from the lids by long chains. Half a dozen spectators walked out on this one, all women. Then there was a man who melted beeswax and lead which he dropped, boiling hot, into his mouth. The leaden ball he spat out finally and handed to a spectator as a souvenir, the spectator dropping it hurriedly because it was still too hot to handle. A few men and several more women made hurried exits after this one, especially when the performer took a plumber's blow-torch and turned the blue flame directly on his open eyes.

Then there was a man, stripped to the waist, who sewed buttons on himself, pulling the needle through the flesh as though it were muslin. As a finale he turned his back on the audience and let the customers hurl darts into his back-carrying audience-participation to a new low.

On the way out I stopped to talk with a man riding a bicycle on a treadmill in a window. Out front a crowd stared. The man had been riding hundreds of hours with 10 minutes rests every 60 minutes. He was required to maintain a pedal speed of 20 miles an hour—a business he had been accomplishing since the Odditorium opened in mid-summer. I suggested it was a quaint way of earning a living. "It isn't that," he said, peddling on without pause, "it is just that my mother-in-law forbade me to take this job—and now I'm afraid to quit and go home."

The shuddering exhibition, judging by the number of customers it sent scampering to the exits, was a woman who swallowed long lighted neon tubes, the glow of which could be seen through her throat and upper torso. Even at tendants at the place who should by now have become blasé in the face of what catalogues in my book roughly as revolting, turned away.

I have no idea why people elect such unusual ways of earning livings, nor can I understand why they are encouraged by public patronage. They told me, however, that there is a large repeat attendance, some people returning again and again. No one even attempts to explain it.

The things I do not understand in this life are legion, and one of them is beauty contests. After Atlantic City had chosen them this year, a few of the girls stopped by New York to see what the cashing-in prospects were. Beauty went to make a movie company dragged them out to a studio for a series of screen tests. Hotels and night clubs feted them. At the end of three days the girls were as tired as if they had done three weeks' washings for a family of ten. One little girl who finished among the first half dozen already had engaged a "manager" who held a contract calling for 25 per cent of any earnings that might accrue through her beauty. When we suggested to the young lady that 25 per cent was rather high, she replied: "My manager says he'll earn me a million dollars, and I'll settle for $750,000, with the other $250,000 going to him."

The catch is that the little lady, who has only beauty to sell, and not any great overdose of that, is not going to make a million dollars. The last I heard she was back at her old job behind the candy counter.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Tuesday, Oct. 13, 1914

The fact that 16 forward passes and 30 punts, drop kicks or placements were attempted during the Lawrence college-Lake Forest game the previous Saturday proved beyond a doubt that the new style of football predominated during the contest despite mud and rain. Lawrence defeated the highly touted Illinois team by a 19 to 7 score.

Boston defeated Philadelphia that day by a 3 to 1 score to establish a World series record by taking four straight games.

The new stand pipe for the water works was to be located on the city fair grounds, it was announced, and work was to begin immediately.

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Oct. 8, 1929
Howard Ehmke, veteran right hander of the Athletics, justified his unexpected selection that day for the opening game of the world series by beating the Chicago Cubs, 3 to 1, and smashing all series records by striking out 13 men before a crowd estimated at 50,000.

Seven Appleton men and women, students at Lawrence college, had been accepted for membership in Sunset players, campus dramatic organization as the result of the final tryouts held in Memorial chapel the previous afternoon. The Appleton group included Arthur Smith, Carl Wettengel, Carleton Roth, Dorothy Davis, Lynn Handeyside, Nona Nemacheck and Merlin Pitt.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

ONE SHINING SUMMER

I have had one shining summer
Filled with loving words and laughter,
And the autumn cannot steal it,
Nor the winter that comes after!

Sunlight, falling on the pine trees,
And the cardinal's gay song
Will sustain me through the winter,
When my sorry world goes wrong.

I have had one shining summer!
Memory can still restore it,
Summer's recollected glory
Warms me and I thank God for it!

PLANES CARRY GERMS

That airplane is carrying deadly disease germs from afar is the discovery of the authorities at Khartoum, Egypt. An inquiry into the subject has been carried on by F. G. S. Whitfield, of the Imperial College of Science, for about four years. More than 2,000 planes were examined, and 146 species of insects collected. A number were far from harmless. Among them were four kinds of the Anopheles mosquito, which carries the germ of malaria, six of Aedes which may carry yellow fever, and other suspects. Whitfield has made his findings public following the survey flight of the flying-boat Guba, which has opened up the prospect of an airline from Africa to India and Australia. He fears that such a line might bring more diseases than blessings.

In the heyday of Corinth, Greece, the city's 20,000 freemen were estimated to possess 460,000 slaves.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The other day we were discussing the emergency and other powers in the hands of the President. Most of the ones we mentioned had been granted in recent years. Below are others, showing that congress began putting power into the hands of the President a long way back.

The senate has asked the attorney general to compile a list of presidential powers. Some senators are afraid the President has too many. Cagily they are seeking to trim out some of the increased powers which the pending neutrality bill would give to him. Privately some members express fear of a war not so much because of what would happen on the battlefield, but what they suspect might happen here at home because of the supposedly dictatorial powers of the chief executive during emergencies.

As the list here will disclose many of the powers have resided with the President since long before the time of President Roosevelt. In spite of them democracy has survived. Nevertheless, say the worried senators, a President who wanted to exercise them could be virtually a dictator even in peacetime. Others who scoff at such fears say it would be a hardy soul indeed who tried to abolish the presidential elections which might oust him.

Back To 1794

The powers listed here are from an official list which no doubt will form the basis of the attorney general's report to the senate.

Starting a way back we find: Acts of June 5, 1794, and April 20, 1818—Use of land or naval forces or militia authorized to prevent fitting out of armed vessels in violation of neutrality laws.

Act of March 3, 1805—Use of land or naval forces or militia authorized to compel departure of foreign armed vessels.

Act of July 26, 1892—President authorized to suspend free passage of Canadian vessels through St. Marys Falls canal in case of disturbances against American vessels going through St. Lawrence river.

Joint resolution of April 22, 1898—President authorized to prohibit export of coal or other war material.

Act of Dec. 6, 1913—Federal reserve board authorized to suspend reserve requirements of federal reserve act.

Act of March 4, 1917—President authorized to establish and make regulations for defense sea areas.

Act of March 4, 1917—President authorized to suspend eight hour law in emergencies.

Spies!

Act of May 16, 1918—Postmaster general authorized during war to instruct postmasters not to accept mail addressed to persons violating espionage act.

Act of Sept. 24, 1918—Authorizing regulation of foreign exchange by the President.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

I think the question that Hitler must be asking himself now is, "Where am I? And, if so, was I dragged?" His war record looks like the best one Russia ever won.

Even the countries that were on Adolf's side, openly or furtively, are now up in the air over the Russian entrance into European affairs. Hitler invited a man to back him up at shortstop, and the man brought his whole team with him.

It looks to me as if Hitler was surrounded, even if you don't consider the French and British at all.

All the big figures in war are shoved into the background and made to look like pygmies again today by a man you may never have heard of. He's a colored man, too, the son of slave parents, and, as a boy, he was swamped for a race horse. The man is Dr. George W. Carver, who is one of three men to get the Theodore Roosevelt medal for distinguished service for 1939.

Against every handicap, this son of slaves has devoted his life to helping the south through its peanut and sweet potato crops. Out of the common or five-bag peanut, he produced 250 useful products, from face powder and cheese to axle grease and an infantile paralysis medicine. And he showed the world how to make 118 useful products from the sweet potato.

Just another man who never had any time for radio addresses, new war weapons or public office.

LENIN HEADLIGHTS USED

One of the features of the tiny house in which Lenin lived in Kostino, Russia, 18 years ago, and which is now being restored, is the automobile headlight which lighted the place. Lenin attached it to a single wire hanging from the ceiling. Current was provided from an accumulator, which also is preserved.

In France the poor are assisted partly through public "bureaux de bienfaisance" and partly by private and ecclesiastical charity.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

(Editor's Note—During the absence of John W. Wyngaard, the Appleton Post-Crescent's capitol correspondent, now on vacation, his daily column will be written by a man prominent in state government. The views expressed under the signatures of the writers are distinctly their own.)

BY SPEAKER VERNON W. THOMSON

Madison—Today I have the double honor of having all of my remarks reported and of placing them in a column so well considered in capitol circles for the honest accuracy of its comment.

The public see their servants through the eyes of the reporters who with few exceptions tell you what they see and not what they think. Their views are echoed by the public whose reactions are evidenced at the polls. The reporters through the press mold public opinion. As presiding officer of the Assembly, when listening to the voice votes on adjournment each day, I sometimes think that the reporters even have the controlling influence on that question.

In the three sessions which I have now served in the Wisconsin assembly this is the first time that the advice and suggestions of the Chief Executive are considered as such and not as a mandate. The convictions of the legislators and the views of their constituents have definitely assumed their rightful independence in legislative matters over the will of the executive. Governor Heil asked for men of ability with the courage of their convictions and the people gave him that kind of a legislature.

That the people wanted an independent legislature is evidenced by the fact that nearly half of the men serving in the assembly this session are newly elected. Those of us in the majority party who served in the special session of 1937 have been zealously alert to guard the present minority against the abuses of democratic procedure which were accorded to us then.

The cries of alarm raised by the minority have been largely shouts of "wolf, wolf." In the assembly the minority votes to eliminate civil service from the administration of the public welfare program and in the senate the minority refuses the proposal because civil service has been eliminated.

The ex-governor often talked about separating quasi-judicial functions from administration in the various commissions but the minority in the 1937 session vigorously opposed these constructive proposals.

The truth of the matter is, and it is confidentially admitted by some of the more powerful radicals, that their opposition is solely because they do not have their government in office to make the appointments.

The newly created securities division has already demonstrated its worth in protecting Wisconsin investors and in procuring remedial laws which will aid in preventing the manipulation of so-called "securities" at which the late B. K. Buckman Co. became so adept under the very nose of the last administration that the stretch around the public to demand a clean-up.

VILLAGE GRAFT IS GOOD

It is high time for decent citizens to take steps to put an end to the contemptible racket which is worked on humble or defenseless people by the petty politicians in health boards or health departments, and not only in obscure country villages but sometimes in communities purporting to be populated by intelligent, self-respecting folk. I refer to such scummy mistreatment at the hands of the local government, right here in America, as this clipped from a newspaper: Madisonville, Ky. Aug. 23. — (Special) Mrs. _____ charged with refusing to have her daughter, _____ vaccinated against small pox, was fined $10 and costs by County Judge _____ when tried this afternoon.

A similar charge against her husband, _____ was dismissed as he said he was willing for the child to be vaccinated.

Dr. _____ county health officer, warned the parents three years ago to have the child vaccinated or she could not attend school. She is a student of the _____ school.

One wonders whether the victims in this instance drew lots to decide which would take the rap, and Mom got the short straw. Anyway, she asked her five thousand and other mothers had the spirit to fight the pinhead politicians in health departments who are so all-fired concerned about vaccination that they can't find time to do anything about the most flagrant violation of fundamental sanitary regulations in eating joints and the like, this persecution of helpless citizens would soon cease.

I believe in vaccination. I am vaccinated, and I urge every one who asks my advice to be vaccinated. Being so protected against the risk of infection with smallpox, as I believe, it is of no concern to me if my neighbor chooses to take his chances without vaccination, either because he doesn't believe in it or because he is just negligent about being immunized. If my neighbor were mentally incompetent or for any other reason incapable of knowing or acting from wrong or safety from danger, then perhaps it would be my duty to see to it, if possible, that he should be vaccinated. That's the whole story. Compulsory vaccination, however contrived, is a bit of nineteenth century ignorance and prejudice translated into village vindictiveness and petty politics of the vintage of 1910.

Let the health department offer vaccination to all who desire it and simply inform those who refuse it that they do so at their own peril—that is the honest truth, for certainly it is not at the peril of any body who is vaccinated.

It's Odd But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

New York—How big is the universe? The answer is, according to what telescopes now see as fact, so big that a radio message could not be sent across it and back again.

This idea of making the vastness comprehensible was figured out by Sir Arthur Eddington, one of Britain's foremost astronomers.

The 200-inch telescope, he says, is expected to see nebulae, which are huge collections of stars, 950 million light years away from earth. A light year is the distance light goes in one year at 186,000 miles a second.

A radio message travels at light's speed. But when it had travelled 950 million years the message would still not be even near the nebula. This is because the universe is expanding. At the end of 950 million years the nebula would have travelled 620 million light years farther away.

Hence the radio message would not arrive until 1,900 million years after leaving the earth. It could not get back in 1,900 million years, however, because the expansion, which grows more rapid all the time, would keep the earth moving ahead of the radio message at almost the speed of the message itself.

But after countless millions of years, Sir Arthur figures, this message would overtake the earth. A message sent to any nebula beyond 950 million light years distance, he says, would never get back. So the new telescope is likely to see the limit to which a message can be sent.

Says Film Firms Strive to Raise Public's Tastes

Movie Official Is Speaker At Luncheon of Lions Club

Adoption and enforcement of standards of good taste in moving pictures and cooperation with educational organizations in America are the aims of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., Ervin E. Deer, director of that body's community service department, said in a talk before the Appleton Lions club yesterday noon in the Conway hotel.

Deer told the Lions club that motion picture producers and distributors are endeavoring "not only to improve the quality of the pictures they present, but also to improve the public's taste."

He described the position of the production code administration—which passes on the script of films first and then views the actual pictures before allowing their release—and quoted from church and school men who have congratulated the film industry on the wholesomeness and good grace of productions.

Deer's speech was in connection with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the film industry and he commented on the fact that "good actors once looked down on the movies, many wouldn't appear in them, and if they did, only on the agreement that they use a fictitious name."

The film industry itself realizes about one-fourth of the box office receipts, Deer declared, remarking that when a million dollars is spent on a movie, between 15 and 18 million people must see it in order for the producer to "get his money back."

Because of the tremendous cost involved in producing and distributing films, they "of necessity must be of general appeal," Deer said.

"So often college professors and church men and leaders of women's clubs ask me why we don't make this type of picture or that type of picture more often. You will find frequently that these people are the most inconsistent movie goers in the country, that their friends and social engagements and books keep them from attending the theater very often. The movie industry can't hope to exist on pictures designed only for this clientele."

There are 17,000 theaters in 9,100 communities in the United States, Deer said. In the making of a movie, 275 types of service are necessary and the industry employs about 300,000 people.

Believe State Deficit Will Be Cut Down Considerably By Time of Special Session

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — Seasoned legislative observers reckoned today that when the inevitable special session of the legislature is called before the end of the year, the Heil administration will have drastically revised its estimates on the amount of new revenue it needs to balance the state budget which at the close of the regular session at the weekend leaned over far out of balance.

As the tired lawmakers took their leave after 94 months of a torrid session, the treasury showed a book deficit of around $15,000,000, more or less depending on the source of the estimates on normal income.

That fearful amount, which successfully chased the state legislature home without acting on a revenue program, will be shaved down considerably, according to private plans of administration leaders and leading members of the special interim committee on taxation or "little legislature" which will shortly begin work on drafting a program for the special session.

May Rearrange Debts
One way to avert the unpleasant task of raising such a huge lump of new revenue—in the face of evidence that the public is in no way sympathetic to the idea—is to rearrange the state's obligations so that a part of the biennial deficit will rest upon the succeeding administration.

Although they are confident that the next administration will also be a Republican administration—and Governor Heil has said that he will again be governor — Republicans feel that it is both impractical and impossible to balance the budget this term. Therefore they will try to divide the burden, leaving a part of the job for the next biennium, when they expect that normal taxes will be yielding more and new levies may be unnecessary.

That can be done, in part, by deferring successively some of the state's pending obligations which can be deferred without political hazards. It can be said now, for example, that the millions due the localities in December as their part of the highway privilege taxes may not be paid for two or three months after that date. It has also been pointed out that the Schmedeman administration, when it touched the bottom of the treasury as the Heil administration will do this winter, postponed payments of school aids for several months.

Can Get Loans
Although local governments usually include such payments in their estimates of annual revenue and are waiting for them, the local governments have the power to make temporary loans which the state does not possess. Therefore, capitol authorities reason, they will be content to wait a little for their money rather than to run the danger of having the state default on them altogether.

Another method which will be resorted to in order to pare down the deficit estimate is a new and unprecedented cut in all existing appropriations, including those which were rigidly cut down in Heil's executive budget.

The state emergency board discovered last week that the tax debate in the legislature had lasted so long that the time had passed for cutting second quarter appropriations. However, all state departments and institutions were promptly warned to expect to lose 25 per cent of their funds for the third and fourth quarters of the year. Here some unpleasantness may develop, for the second cut will hurt in some places. While the state departments will get along some of the state institutions will be hard pressed to accommodate themselves to the sudden economy order.

Would Hurt University
The University of Wisconsin, for example, started out the year by insisting determinedly that it needed $9,000,000 for the next two years. It had enjoyed about $8,000,000 during the previous biennium, but enrollment had increased. The Heil budget endowed it with $7,000,000, which represented a reduction of about 12 1/2 per cent.

Add to that a new reduction of 25 per cent, and the university will find itself with the job of handling 12,000 students with the amount of money it formerly received for 7,000. It will mean heavy new fees for the student body, staggered classes, abolition of courses.

The board of control, run by the governor's friend, Frank Klode, had announced that it would skip along on the first cut, although rising food costs due to the war made the institutional situation precarious. How the board would survive a new 25 per cent reduction is questionable, since most of the funds go for food and materials. Salaries have already been pared ruthlessly in that department.

Moreover, the teachers' colleges have confidently expected that their budgets would be increased by the emergency board. Instead they get a notice that they will get a new cut, in the face of heavy increases in enrollments.

The state government is due for a hard year.

Fire Prevention Week Is Good Time to Check Up on Hazards

Chicago—(P)—There's no place like home for fires. The National Safety Council takes this week—Fire Prevention Week—as the occasion to report that fires in homes caused one-third of the 1938 fire damage totaling $270,000,000.

Carelessness with such things as heating plants, matches, oily rags, cigars, cigarettes, inflammable dry cleaning fluids and faulty electric wiring caused loss in homes last year of $87,000,000.

Eight major causes of fires in homes in order of importance are rubbish, defective chimneys, combustible roofs, defective heating apparatus, matches and careless smoking, gasoline, kerosene, other inflammable fluids, electrical defects, hot ashes.

Home fires are particularly ruinous because once a fire starts in a home the blaze spreads rapidly to the many combustible articles in the average home. Most home buildings themselves are combustible.

In addition to monetary loss and property damage, about 7,000 persons (half of them children) lose lives annually in home fires, and the cost of ruined financial futures for victimized families, though huge, cannot be estimated.

The National Fire Protection association comments: "It is common to attribute fire to carelessness. This is too casual an answer. It leaves the impression that there is nothing that can be done, when, as a matter of fact, nearly all fires in homes, as elsewhere, can be prevented by intelligently eliminating or avoiding the hazards."

BAKED CUSTARD

Can you make a perfect plain custard, smooth and even, with that delicately fine flavor of eggs and milk brought out, but not obscured, by sugar and flavoring?

A fine-textured, dry-eyed custard is queen among desserts. An over-firm weepy one is no dessert at all. The secret of good custard making is in the cooking temperature. Too much heat is responsible for most custard ills, the hardness of texture, wateriness, and lack of flavor about which cooks often complain. Set custard cups or baking dish in a pan of water so that they don't get too big a dose of heat.

Plain Custard

2 cups scalded milk
4 eggs
4 tablespoons sugar
Pinch of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
Nutmeg, if desired

Beat eggs slightly, add salt and sugar and stir until the sugar dissolves. Pour milk gradually into eggs. Add flavoring. Pour into buttered cups or pudding dish, place in a pan of hot water, put the pan in a moderate oven 325-350 degrees F., and bake 20 to 30 minutes, until the custard is firm in the center. Test with a knife if the knife comes out clean the custard is done.

Prune Custard

2 cups milk scalded
2-3 cup prune puree (sieved cooked prunes)
3 eggs
1-3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice or 1 teaspoon lemon flavoring

Beat eggs slightly, add sugar and

Prune puree, scalded milk and flavoring. Pour into buttered custard cups or baking dish. Set in a pan of hot water and bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven 350 degrees F.

Caramel Custard

4 cups scalded milk
5 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon salt

Melt the sugar to a light golden brown in a heavy pan gradually pour into the scalding milk, stir until dissolved. Add mixture gradually to eggs, slightly beaten, add salt and flavoring, then strain into buttered mold. Place in a pan containing an inch of hot water, and bake at 325-350 degrees F. for about 30 to 35 minutes, or until an inserted knife will come out clean. Chill and serve with a caramel sauce, or bake in a ring mold, chill. Unmold and serve with whipped cream in the center, and hot maple syrup.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

A nation-wide mixture of rugged honesty, horse sense and elbow grease would be the ideal tonic right now by which to revive Uncle Sam, who has become unduly anemic the past decade from the political leeches who have been sucking his life blood.

CASE O-163: Hiram J., aged 37, is a successful grain farmer. "We have too many paid theorists trying to teach us how to operate our farms successfully," he challenged.

"Just because a man graduated from an agricultural school, is no positive proof of his ability to practice successful farming.

"Instead of their occupying swivel chairs on good salaries, paid by agree that Teachers should be able to practice what they teach."

DIA-CNOSIS: In a previous Case Record I told you that one of the most serious troubles with America is the fact that banana oil has replaced good old-fashioned elbow grease as our national lubricant.

Only tongue-tongued politicians and teachers have found it so profitable to delude our people with theories that we have dragged along for a disgraceful decade when a mixture of rugged honesty, horse sense and elbow grease would have permitted our national economic motor to purr along on all 16 cylinders.

"Faith without works is dead," states the Bible, and brain trusters with lily white palms and little practical experience have beautifully demonstrated that truism in modern American affairs.

It is difficult to gain horse sense without having worn callouses on your palms. Some of our theorists may have the callouses all right, but they are on the wrong portion of their anatomy and traceable to much sitting in swivel chairs.

Modern Rehoboams
When Solomon died and Rehoboam became his successor, the Jewish people were ripe for revolt because of high taxes, and too much dictatorship.

So they nominated Rehoboam as a true Jeffersonian democrat to seek a more reasonable administration. But Rehoboam forsook the sage counsel of the practical farmers and shrewd businessmen who urged compromise and leniency, lower taxes and a balanced budget.

Instead, he avidly gobbled up the advice of his picked crew of brain trusters, who told him that the royal blood and prestige of Solomon would overwhelm all opposition.

But horse sense won the conflict, so Rehoboam lost 10 tribes of Israel, for the ensuing civil war proved the folly of Rehoboam's theoretical advisers.

This nation is not only piling up tremendous federal and state debts but worse yet, is pyramiding jobholders upon jobholders, and all at the taxpayer's expense.

We need to advocate a return to sanity where people earn their living working hard in an open market instead of living like parasites on wood ticks by sapping the vitality out of the hard working householder who is honestly earning his livelihood.

Defense Must Use Weapons With Caution

BY ELY CULBERTSON

In the very nature of things, the declarer usually has more ammunition than is available to the defense. The mere fact that he has bought the contract makes this probable. (Obviously, I am not referring to the hands in which the declarer has been doubled and is about to be severely trounced for overbidding.)

The very fact that the defender's artillery is inferior is all the more reason for their using to the best advantage such weapons as they have. They cannot afford to sacrifice a king, as East did in the following hand.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 club Pass 1 spade Pass
2 no trump Pass 3 no trump Pass

West opened the three of diamonds, dummy played low, and East (whose bridge training had gone no farther than to "play third hand high" and "never to finesse against his partner") docilely put up the king. Declarer smothered this with the ace and, deciding that his own club suit with the queen in dummy offered a better chance for establishment than the spade suit, led low to the club queen. East won with the ace and made the correct shift to a low heart. Declarer tried the queen finesse but it lost to the king. Jack returned the heart.

Declarer felt that he might have need for his third heart at a later stage, hence won this trick with the ace and then laid down the king and jack of clubs, praying that the ten would drop it did, and now he was home. After cashing his two remaining club tricks he led the diamond nine to the ten and cashed the diamond queen. On the fourth round of clubs, East led the spade nine and on the fifth the heart eight. West had discarded two diamonds, so now there was no danger in leading dummy's remaining heart. East won with the ten and his spade jack return was allowed to ride to the queen. In all, declarer took two spade tricks, one heart, three diamonds, and four clubs, thereby making his contract with an overtrick.

There would have been a far different result if East had used his head to better advantage at the very first trick. Considering the bidding (particularly South's jump from one spade to two no trump), the diamond ace, at least, was virtually marked in declarer's hand, this probability being strongly bolstered by the fact that South's club suit lacked the ace, queen, and ten, and that his spade holding could not be impressive. Once East realized that the diamond king almost certainly would be slaughtered by the ace, it would have required no more than elementary logic to refuse to put up the king. What matter if declarer could win the first diamond trick with a low card? He still would be unable to capture the diamond king, and although he undoubtedly would make two diamond tricks, he would not make three. The holdup of the diamond trick difference and defeated the contract. Declarer would have won with the nine spot, but not only would he have been unable to win a third diamond trick, but the throwing play which eventually developed against East never would have come off.

Every Child Should be Taught To Help With Household Tasks

BY ANGELO PATRI

Christine is eleven. Until the last year she was the only child. Now there is a baby brother who takes a great deal of her mother's time and energy. Mother does all the work and by evening she is about worn out. Christine refuses to help when she is asked, saying that she is tired after going to school all day. This makes things hard for mother. Father thinks Christine should help. Mother asks her to help, and Christine says No. Father scolds and scolds.

Of course Christine should help her mother and baby brother and cheerfully obey father's suggestion that she do so. But the situation is scarcely the child's fault. For ten very impressionable years, she was given to understand that she was not to help anybody. All she had to do was to take what was offered her and enjoy herself without thought of anybody but herself.

Then came the baby. His coming meant tremendous adjustments in father's and mother's lives. But it did not mean a thing to Christine. She had never been told that she owed anybody the slightest consideration. How could she know that her help was needed? And how could she know how to give efficient help, not having been taught to do any work?

Now she must be taught, in short, order, all that she should have been learning in the past ten years. It is not easy for a mother and father to do that teaching, in that time, and to overcome the teaching that the past had instilled. What a child learns in the first years of his life is going to hold for years and years to come. What teaching follows afterward has to be a modification of what went before, and that is not easy. Children do not change overnight.

Every child, and especially an only child, needs to be taught that everything that goes on in the house concerns him. He is to take his share in the work, and the play, the good fortune and the bad, as they come. He is to learn to help in every department of the household, starting when he is able to hold his own washing, and finishing when his life on earth is complete. This he does, not so much for the sake of the affection he has for his family, as for his own sake. Every job he masters adds to his intelligence and power. He cannot learn to do a household chore without at the same time adding dignity and strength to his personality. Intelligence does not wear out with work. It grows and feeds on work. If the children's help in the house were never needed they need the work because of the nourishment it gives their minds and bodies.

Teaching children, especially brothers and sisters, to do their share of the household work, even when it is not necessary, is a trying task, but it is worth all it takes. Children can relieve their mothers and fathers, of a great deal of work. They can save their parents a lot of energy, and that is extremely worth while. They can, by sharing in the work, in planning and carrying through the home schemes of one sort or another, acquire skill, poise, and efficiency in ways too numerous to mention. But mother must do the teaching and she must begin early.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Man Who Mistreats First Wife Would Do No Better by Second

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am 20 years old, very pretty, and am working for a man who is married and has two children. He drinks heavily and has a terrible temper and knocks his wife about. Recently he left her and now he wants me to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. He is rich and gives me everything I want. If I marry him, will he hand me the same rough stuff as he does his present wife? My mother wants me to marry him, but I am in love with a poor boy who doesn't earn much and I should have to wait a long time for him. Please advise.

Answer:
I don't see why you should be perplexed about what would happen to you if you married this man. Any child could give you the answer. Long before the honeymoon has waned a drunken brute will come home and beat you up and you will get just about what you deserve for selling yourself to a man whom you don't love for a meal ticket.

THE RANCH
BUFF was packing when her mother came to say they were going down to dinner.

"Already?" Eleanor's eyes widened. "You aren't starting for the ranch tomorrow, Buff dear?"

She kept her back to the light. She had bathed and powdered her eyes, she had run a wet comb through her mop of bright gold hair. She hoped she looked as usual but there was no sense taking chances. A frown of displeasure knitted her brows at the note of hoarseness she heard in her own voice.

"Might as well. This gorgeous weather." She stopped, began again. "I may have to stay on longer than a week, Eleanor. We left things in a good deal of a mess, you know; and Lance told Mrs. Webb not to touch anything of his, even to dust it. You'll be stammered a little but forced herself to go on—"You'll be all right here until I get back. Even if you have one of your headaches, you can get a nurse. It's not like the ranch, or some of the funny places we've lived in."

At the thought of those funny places, and the responsibilities she had shouldered with such pride, a lump came into her throat. They had resented her, Lance and Eleanor! Or if not resented, exactly, they had been restive under her attentions. She felt her breast rising on a tumultuous sob. "Mother, I just can't stammered and

Mrs. Carroll was too preoccupied with her own uneasy thoughts to pay heed to Buff. Her dear little girl, her precious daughter! It seemed too ungrateful, to actually mean to deceive her! But the child was really developing a responsibility complex, ran the mother's anxious mind. For her own good a stop must be put to it at once.

"Of course I can get a nurse, if I need one. You're not to worry about us at all, darling! I'll be glorious in the mountains this time of year. The aspens will be turning—you remember we said we wanted so much to see them turn? And Mrs. Webb will take the best sort of care of you. Are you ready? Lance will be wondering what on earth has become of us!"

the soil retains too much water, becomes sour and the roots cannot get sufficient air. For that reason it is recommended that most transplanted garden material be set in flower pots known in the trade as "three's and four's."

An important thing to remember when potting is that the small hole in the bottom of the pot is intended to allow surplus water to drain away and should this become clogged, the plant will certainly water-log. For that reason it is advisable to place a few pieces of broken crockery or stones over the bottom to prevent mud getting into this hole and eventually clogging it up.

Pot the plants firmly pressing the soil down with the fingers all around the edges. And be sure to use a rich soil! A good potting mixture is made from equal parts of good garden loam, well-decayed manure and peat moss.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

The "snood" fashion which has taken American women by storm, is a gift from heaven for those of us who need to recondition our hair after a season or two of neglect, or a long illness.

Up until this autumn our hats (or excuses for hats!) covered almost no hair at all. They perched atop our heads, over one eye, which compelled us to keep our hair-do looking their best all of the time. In fact, that silly style, did much to rob our heads of much beauty, for too frequent shampoos and settings under driers, and strong doses of hot sun, take their toll!

But now that the snood is with us, you have the greatest chance to bring new beauty to your hair through diligent treatment, and still look your most beguiling day or night!

Many girls are reluctant to massage their scalps with a corrective salve or tonic, and lubricate the too dry ends of an old permanent, because they feel such treatment makes their hair look messy. It shouldn't, if done properly, but some heads which need a good tonic or oil reconditioning must use corrective hair products lavishly for a quick job. However, the snood will cover all, so if your hair needs a little encouragement, go to it, without fear of sacrificing a spec of your glamour. The latest chic hats boast fabric snoods or those of heavy velvet. The new draw string snoods, which allow our front curls only to peek out, are worn by many a business girl, or school girl while her old permanent is growing out and her hair is taking on fresh beauty. This same type of hair covering comes studded with jewels or fetching little bows for evening wear—a perfect complement to those smart dinner suits are being worn for formal parties. Even the more demure evening gowns may be worn with these elaborate evening snoods.

So you must admit that this versatile fashion leaves you little to be desired for you to show a neglected head!

Whatever ails your scalp—whether it be too dry, too oily or a dandruff case—get busy and do something about it. Buy the necessary aids and make up your mind that with the aid of the snood you will devote a month or perhaps two to scalp and hair treatments. By no means have a new permanent wave wound into your hair if even two inches of your old one is still with you. Brush your hair, massage your scalp and anoint it, until your hair is long enough to stand having the old curl cut off. Then your new permanent will be soft and lovely, and a great satisfaction to you throughout the winter months.

You girls who would like to let your hair grow long (which is the fashion from coast to coast) should seize this opportunity to do it. Don't have it thinned or shaped or trimmed. Just let it grow and help it along with the suggestions given in my hair leaflets which are free upon request.

Labor Agreement For Phone Firm Employees Signed

Rates of Pay, Working Hours and Conditions Are Set Up

George A. Burns, attorney for the Independent Union of Telephone Operators, disclosed at Milwaukee today the terms of a labor agreement covering 2,600 employees in 30 state cities and towns in which the Wisconsin Telephone company operates.

Exchanges covered by the contract include Appleton, Hortonville, Kaukauna, Neenah, New London, Oshkosh, Shawano, and Waupaca in this area.

Rates of pay and working hours and conditions for employees in the company's traffic department are set up in the agreement, as well as recognition of the union as sole bargaining agency.

Grievance machinery provides that the American Arbitration association shall supply a disinterested chairman of the arbitrating board if the union and company representatives are unable to agree upon a chairman. Either the company or union may call upon the arbitrator association for an umpire if the other does not act in a controversy.

Burns reported that a vacation scale of one week with pay after one year of employment, two weeks after two years, and three weeks after 20 years, was provided.

The independent is one of the largest recognized by the national labor relations board as a legitimate bargaining agency. The board recognized the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers as bargaining agency at Racine, Kenosha, Janesville and Superior.

Charles Donnelly, Appleton, Pleads Guilty At Waupaca

Waupaca — Charles Donnelly, Appleton, pleaded guilty of drunken driving when he appeared before Justice of the Peace S. W. Johnson yesterday afternoon and was fined $50 and costs. Donnelly was driving in an erratic manner.

The Appleton man was arrested Saturday by Waupaca city police. The court was told that Donnelly was driving in an erratic manner.

Hans A. Anderson of Whitehall Dead at 84

Whitehall — Hans A. Anderson, 84, Norwegian immigrant who became an assemblyman, county judge and district attorney, died yesterday.

Anderson came to the United States in 1867. He was an active member of the state historical society, and was the donor of Trempealeau county's "house of memories" which contained his private museum.

He retired three years ago after practicing law in Whitehall for 40 years. Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Herman L. Ekern of Madison, Mrs. Gerald Anderson of Sheboygan, Mrs. W. C. Mason and Mrs. S. B. Nichols of Whitehall, and two sons, George of Haugen and William of Rockford, Ill.

About 150 members of Roosevelt Junior high school Parent-Teacher association attended the "get-acquainted" period in the first meeting of the organization last night, visiting various classrooms and talking with teachers.

A sound motion picture, "Hoosier Schoolmaster," was shown. The Roosevelt association will hold a joint meeting with the Edison PTA Nov. 13, it was announced today.

Mrs. Frank Schneider, Mrs. E. C. Junge, and Mrs. John Trautmann from the Roosevelt association will attend a divisional PTA meeting in the new Methodist church at Neenah tomorrow.

Drinking at U. W. Grid Games Scored

Dykstra Answers Everything Is Being Done To Stop Practice

Madison — President Clarence A. Dykstra and University of Wisconsin athletic department officials were united today in denial of a charge by the Rev. Emil B. Frye that liquor drinking at university football games was "an affront to dignity."

The pastor of the First Methodist church, of Madison, told his congregation Sunday: "At the Marquette game this year I saw a young man so inebriated he was unable to focus his binoculars. He complained constantly because he saw two drum majors and a swaying stadium."

Dykstra said some drinking occurred in every large gathering, but asserted the university was doing all it could to stop it. He intimated adult spectators were the worse offenders, declaring he doubted very much that students took bottles to the stadium.

Athletic Director Harry Stuhldreher and William Aspinwall, athletic officer, declared they had not been advised of any excessive drinking, and that a "strong arm" squad of university athletes patrolled the stadium and ejected "drunks."

"People now have the right to drink and they bring their own liquor into the stadium," Aspinwall said. "As long as they are behaving themselves there isn't much we can do about it."

Eau Claire Company Submits Low Bid on Relocation Project

Allied Construction company, Eau Claire, made the unofficial low offer of $57,168.84 to relocate Highway 49 in the city of Waupaca to avoid several sharp turns and a dangerous crossing with the Soo line railroad, the state highway commission announced today.

The project includes a 276-foot bridge over the Soo tracks and a 134-foot bridge over the Waupaca river.

The highway commission received bids today totaling $435,778.53 on seven projects, including the one at Waupaca. All bids will be checked for error before contracts are awarded.

Election of officers will be held by the Outagamie County Dental society tonight at the Conway hotel. A 6:30 dinner will be held preceding the business session. Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, will report on the county dental program.

In both objectives, French dispatches said, the Germans failed. The Germans were said to have fought desperately before retiring under a raking fire. Saarbruecken, rich German industrial city around which the operations centered, is near the middle of the northern front.

A heavy artillery battle, launched by the Germans Sunday and answered by French batteries in a 90-mile sector from the Luxembourg border to Lauterbourg, provided a background for the action.

These reports of the fighting were contained in a communique issued this morning by the French general staff, which said that "enemy patrols are still very active, notably east and west of the Saar." The communique noted "reciprocal artillery action in the same regions."

'Kickoff' Dinner Opening Event in Y Fall Campaign

One of Largest First-Night Crowds Gathers At Building

The 1939 fall campaign of the Appleton Y. M. C. A. was launched with enthusiasm last night as more than 100 leaders and workers, one of the largest first-night gatherings in the history of the association's drives, gathered to hear Guy Aldrich, area secretary, and receive final instructions.

The first reports on the progress of the campaign will be posted at a dinner meeting at 6 o'clock this evening in the "Y" building.

Aldrich pointed out to the campaigners that the Y. M. C. A. is not "owned by the board of directors" but is established for each individual member. He reviewed portions of the association's history and commented on the conditions it faces in countries affected by the European war.

William E. Buchanan, one of the two chairmen for the campaign, presided at the dinner. The other chairman is William U. Gallaher. It was announced at the meeting that the Y. M. C. A. is celebrating the birth of George Williams of London, England, the association's founder; the 95th anniversary of the founding of the "Y"; and the 50th anniversary of its world service program.

The members and workers stood in silence for a moment last night in memory of the late Mike Steinhauer, who was the highest ranking member of the Emblem club, composed of "Y" campaign workers.

It was reported that Mrs. Mike Steinhauer yesterday called in the first membership, one to be given to a needy youth.

The advance gifts campaign is moving briskly, it was announced at the meeting. The fall membership campaign will end officially Monday. Dinner meetings will be held each night this week at which the various divisions will make their reports.

Favors Extension of Food Stamp Program for Relief

Chicago — (P) — Milo Perkins, president of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, said today the success of the food stamp plan for disposing of excess agricultural commodities among relief clients made its extension on a much wider scale advisable.

In a speech prepared for the sixth annual meeting of the National Association of Food Chains, Perkins gave an analysis of a three-month study of the stamp plan, but warned that further time and study were necessary to establish trends definitely.

Under this plan, as worked out by the federal government last spring, different colored stamps were issued to relief clients to be exchanged for food at grocery stores.

The plan was tried out in five sectional representative medium-sized cities. The preliminary figures show, Perkins said, that about one-quarter of the stamps are being used for butter and another one-quarter for eggs.

Approximately 31 per cent is being divided among the fresh fruits and vegetables, according to the consumer's selection and the commodities which have been on the list, Perkins said.

Corn meal, rice, dry beans and dried prunes are each receiving more than 2 per cent of the blue stamp (good for surplus only) expenditure as the result of the new buying by needy families, he continued.

About 150,000 relief clients participated in the stamp plan experiment. "If the same percentage of persons took part in a national program as has been the case in the experimental cities, the group of participating eligibles would include 15,000,000 individuals," Perkins said.

"The stamp plan makes possible a much broader market for farmers producing those commodities for which there is an elastic demand, such as dairy products, poultry products, fruits and vegetables," he said.

Fire Protection At Home Assures Safety, Security

Simply 'Watch the Details,' Adjustment Firm Manager Says

Money and time spent on home fire protection are small in comparison with the damage and unhappiness that can be avoided through such safety measures, Max Weaver, Green Bay, manager of the Western Adjustment and Inspection company, said in a talk before members of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce and others at the Conway hotel last night.

"Carry the word to people to watch details and they will be assured that their homes will be safe from hostile fires," Weaver said. "Don't depend on the fire department, because they can't help much when you awaken during the night to find yourself in the middle of a blaze. There are some fires that no department can stop."

Weaver's talk was in connection with Fire Prevention week, observances of which are being sponsored in Appleton by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Fire Chief George P. McGillan, and Nicholas Reider, fire department inspector, were at the meeting and spoke briefly. Roy McNeil, face chairman for the fire prevention program, presided.

"Controlled fire is a friend, but uncontrolled fire may cause inconvenience, unhappiness, and tragedy," Weaver said. "It does not take a great deal of effort to check up on the furnace, the chimney, electric switches and electric appliances to be certain there's no danger of home fires."

Praises Department

He commended the Appleton fire department for its work, and remarked that "in too many cities in the country, departments are trying to fight 1939 fires with 1919 equipment."

As an adjuster, Weaver said he constantly hears the remark, "Well, there is only one thing to be done to cause misery and unhappiness in a home, he pointed out, and the odds say that it's unlikely you would ever have more than one fire in your home during your life."

Not only property but human life is at stake in fire prevention, Weaver said. "Is the prospect of repairing a risky roof more horrible than fire?" he asked.

He described cases where adhesive tape and chewing gum had been used to insulate wires and criticized "home-made wiring jobs" done by "handy men." Some of the home-made jobs he has observed are bewildering to behold and terrifying to consider in the light of fire menace, he said.

Menasha Library To Cooperate With College of the Air

Will Sponsor 'America Through Books Course' Each Wednesday

Menasha—Elisha D. Smith public library will cooperate in sponsoring "America through Books," one of the weekly courses being offered by the Wisconsin College of the Air, a service of the University of Wisconsin.

A radio will be placed in the basement reference room for those who are interested in the course in which brief book reviews will give information about various sections of the United States. The course is on the air from 3 o'clock to 3:30 each Wednesday afternoon over stations WEA at Madison and WBL at Stevens Point.

Books which are reviewed on the programs will be available at the library and will be placed on reserve for those who desire them. The programs have been in progress since the last of September but the library will inaugurate its first program this Wednesday.

The program for this week will concern the New England states. Works by Gladys H. Carroll and Dorothy Canfield Fisher, authors who have written about that section of the country, will be reviewed. The course will last to the middle of May.

Program Outline
Other sections of the country to be included in the reviews are the Atlantic seaboard, the south, the Appalachian region, the Great Lakes region, the Ozarks, the southwest, the desert, California, the Pacific northwest, the cattle country and the wheat and corn lands.

Works by Ernest Hemingway, Louis Bromfield, Harold Bell Wright, Willa Cather, Mark Twain, Upton Sinclair, Peter B. Kyne, Sinclair Lewis, Zane Grey, Clara Aldrich, Bess Streeter Aldrich, Philip D. Strong and others will be reviewed.

One special broadcast at the end of the course will be devoted to Wisconsin. Authors whose works will be reviewed will include August Derleth, Janet Ayer Fairbank, Zona Gale, Nebe Jewell Nichols, Gladys Westcott, Gladys Taber and Hamlin Garland.

The course is prepared under the direction of Miss Mary C. Devereaux of the University of Wisconsin library school and students in the course in book selection. Trained readers present the broadcasts which include descriptions, explanations and actual readings from the works of the various authors.

Patrol Leaders of Scout Unit Named

St. Thomas Episcopal Group to Hold 'Hobo Night' Program

Menasha—Patrol leaders of Boy Scout Troop No. 3, sponsored by St. Thomas Episcopal church, have been named for the coming year, according to Don Rusch, scoutmaster.

The new patrol leaders include Frank Heckrodt, Donald Quinn, Lawrence Blank, James Austin and Robert Huebner. All are senior patrol leaders. William Huebner is the scribe and quartermaster.

A hobo night program is planned for the regular meeting at 7:30 tonight. All of the scouts will come to the meeting dressed as hobos. Questions will be asked pertaining to the ranks already achieved by the scouts.

If the scouts answer the questions successfully they will be permitted to visit the "Big Rock Candy mountain," which will be a tub of caramelized apples. However, if the scouts fail to answer the questions they will be assigned to the "jungle" until given another chance by the "railroad detective" who will conduct the examination.

A gym night program also is being planned although details have not been completed. All boys who have been members of the troop two years or more will attend the gym night.

Expect 300 to Attend Songfest at Oshkosh

Menasha—Members of the Neenah Kiwanis club and their wives will be among the 300 expected to attend the annual district Kiwanis songfest and banquet which will be held at 7 o'clock this evening at St. Mary's auditorium at Oshkosh.

Other clubs which will be represented are Oshkosh, Appleton, Fond du Lac, Beaver Dam, Columbus, Ripon and Waupun. Judges will be Clyde G. Broughton, Marinette; Norman Knutzen, Stevens Point; and Charles W. Tomlinson, Madison. J. L. Kelly, Fond du Lac, Kiwanis lieutenant governor, will be the master of ceremonies.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or telephoned. Orders for classified advertising should be placed by telephoning 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated. The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Roth, who is president of the Northwestern Lutheran Theological seminary, is scheduled to talk at 3 o'clock this afternoon on "The Historical Development of the Northwest Seminary." The Rev. Mr. Blenker, student pastor at Madison, will talk at 8:30 Wednesday morning. His subject will be "Christian Education in State Universities."

Name Elzer Marx Editor of Junior High Newspaper

Students Prepare to Release First Issue of 'Junior High Lights'

Menasha—Elzer Marx, a freshman, has been named editor-in-chief of the "Junior High Lights," newspaper published by students of the Menasha Junior High school. The paper, which is issued quarterly under the direction of Miss Myrene Plopper, faculty adviser, first was organized last year.

Work has started on the first issue of the paper which will appear about Oct. 20. The paper is printed in the print shop of Menasha High school by students under the direction of H. O. Griffith. In addition to the editor-in-chief, Ruth Backus is the only other freshman on the staff. She is the proof reader. All other members of the staff are seventh and eighth grade students.

Betty Overby is the assistant editor. Mary Jensen is the editorial writer while Frank Heckrodt is the news editor. The humor editor is Richard Smarzynski. The feature editor is Patti Fitzgibbon while club and society news will be under the editorship of Joyce Bauer.

Inquiring Reporter
The paper also will have an inquiring reporter who will record opinions of students on various school questions. He is Alfred Voelker. Joyce Metko is the exchange editor. Athletics also will play an important part in the paper with Marilyn Fitch in charge of girls athletics and Edward Ceder in charge of boys athletics.

Assistants to the editors are Maurice Beck, Betty Jensen, Ruth Miller, Edward Moon, Donna Smith, Robert Williams and Beulah Wendt. Reporters on the staff are Raymond Dorow, Stanley Dombrowski, Delphine King, Robert Mason, Jack Pinkerton, Patty Scanlon, Hazel Smith, Doris Torsrud, Kathleen Wassinger, Geraldine White, Lucille Goethe and James Barnstable.

Menasha—F. E. Younger, superintendent of the Menasha public schools, will be the guest speaker at the Educational day program of the Winnebago chapter, Order of DeMolay, at the Menasha Masonic lodge rooms Wednesday night. The program will start at 8 o'clock.

The program will be open to the public and friends, Masons and parents have been invited to attend. Educational day is one of the six obligatory days to be observed by members of the DeMolay order.

Following the talk by Mr. Younger, there will be a discussion of the principles of DeMolay and the things it symbolizes. The discussion is intended to acquaint the public with the principles of DeMolay.

After the discussion there will be a social hour and a light luncheon will be served.

Library to Hold Annual Book Week
Menasha—Preparations for the annual Book Week observance are underway at the Neenah Public library, Miss May Hart, librarian, reported today.

Book week will begin Nov. 12 and conclude Nov. 18, and the slogan which has been selected for the national observance is "Books Around the World."

The library will have received new books for the observance, and books already in the library and which will pertain to the topic selected for the observance will be listed in pamphlets printed by the library.

The librarian and her assistants also will arrange displays for children as well as adults, and exhibits will pertain to the Book week slogan.

Grade school children will be invited to visit the library during the week, and it is expected that the pupils in grades and rooms will visit the library in a body at scheduled times and accompanied by their teachers.

RUBBISH WEDNESDAY
Menasha—Rubbish will be collected in the first district on Wednesday, according to H. O. Haug, city health officer. The district includes the Menasha side of the island.

St. Mary, Neenah High Elevens Will Clash on Saturday

Both Teams are 'Victory-Hungry' Following Three Defeats

Menasha—Two "victory-hungry" elevens will clash at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Butte des Morts field when the football teams of Neenah High school and St. Mary High school meet in their annual battle.

The Neenah team has lost three decisions, including two in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference. The St. Mary High school team has lost three decisions and has one victory, a triumph over the Kesheena Indians.

The two teams have played one common opponent, New London. New London won from both teams, taking a 13 to 12 decision from the Zephyrs and defeating the Rockets last Friday 9 to 0. The Zephyrs had a chance to tie New London but missed the extra point attempt. That same habit of missing extra points cost the Zephyrs a tie against Edgewood of Madison Sunday for the team lost 7 to 6.

Neenah Has Lead
Neenah has an advantage in the series which was opened in 1931. The meeting Saturday will be the ninth between the two schools. Neenah has won six games to two for the Zephyrs.

Neenah has run up the biggest series in counting its victories although each school has applied the whitewash once. Neenah ran up the biggest score when the series opened in 1931 with a 41 to 0 victory. Neenah also won a free-scoring game in 1932 by a 32 to 19 score.

The Zephyrs scored their victories in the next two years. In 1933 the Zephyrs won, 13 to 6, and in 1934 they won 25 to 0. Neenah has won the last four games. Scores were 10 to 7, 18 to 5, 26 to 6 and 14 to 13. The missed extra point cost the Zephyrs a tie in their game last year with Neenah.

Ralph Moore, 43, 521 N. Mary street, Appleton, pleaded guilty of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs. He was arrested on Highway 10 at 1 o'clock this morning by county police.

School Nurse, Dental Hygienist Check Physical, Dental Defects

Menasha—An inspection of school children of Menasha by the school health nurse and dental hygienist was carried on in September by Mrs. Sigrid Dudley, R. N., and Miss Dolores Kasel, dental hygienist, according to the monthly reports presented to the board of education.

The school nurse pointed out the need for the importance of a general survey and personal inspection of all students early in the year. Such an inspection permits early discovery of illness, physical defects, rash and other ailments and prevents their spread. The combined inspections also resulted in early revelation of dental defects.

In addition special vision tests were conducted for all students of the Menasha Vocational school and Junior and Senior High schools. The tests revealed few uncorrected vision defects. Parents are prompt in acting on the suggestions of the health department in taking their children to physicians, dentists and oculists. General health of the students was reported as "very good" by the nurse.

Notices of defective teeth were sent to 157 parents as a result of the 2,021 inspections made by the dental hygienist. Ten home calls were made by her. All the three dental clinics at Jefferson school 23 appointments were made and all were completed.

The nurse also made 2,021 inspections. Eighty-eight children were admitted to service. There were 11 dental nursing visits, 27 office nurse visits, and 16 first aid cases. There were 34 exclusions from school. Two cases of scarlet fever were reported. Of 264 special vision tests eight vision defects were revealed. Corrections in vision and dental defects also were noted.

LeNora Meyer Is Elected Head of College Alumni

Name Carl Williams Vice President of Oshkosh Teachers Group

Neenah—Miss LeNora Meyer, Neenah High school English instructor, was elected president of the Oshkosh State Teachers college Alumni association for 1939-40 at a meeting of graduates last weekend. Carl Williams, who teaches in the seventh and eighth grades at Kimberly school, was elected vice president. He succeeds Miss Meyer who held that position during the last term.

Other officers elected are Miss Orpha Wollangk, Oshkosh State Teachers college, executive secretary, and W. J. Geiger, also of the college, treasurer. He was reelected.

The association, which in the last few years started a scholarship fund, has given two scholarships to sophomores. It was reported at the meeting which was held in conjunction with the college homecoming. The scholarships amount to $50 each and they were awarded to Warren Keating, Reeseville, and Lois Vandenberg, New London.

Plans for printing a directory of alumni of the college were made when Mrs. Elizabeth MacDonald reported on the list which she is preparing. The association planned to hold a series of meetings throughout the year.

Riverview Country Club Will Be Dude Ranch for Harvest Supper, Dance Saturday Night

RIVerview Country club will take on the aspects of a dude ranch, Bar Nothing, for its annual harvest home supper and dance Saturday night. A departure from previous years, when the harvest supper was carried out in barn dance style, this year's party promises nevertheless to be just as popular as ever.

A caricature of a lassoing cowboy and a horse decorated the covers of the invitations which have been sent to members. The invitation itself was printed in verse and began:

"The Bar Nothing ranch at Riverview is having a party 'specially' for you.

If you're real snooty, or awfully vain, Come all dressed up and carry a cane. But if you're a real sport and want some fun, Wear wild clothes and carry a gun."

On the committee are Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pickard, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Schubert, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Courtney, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Saecker and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Knapp.

Miss Mildred Hawley entertained at a surprise birthday party Sunday in honor of her mother, Mrs. Ray Hawley, 1208 E. Fremont street. Dinner and supper were served to the guests. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tuchscherer and family, Joseph Van Densen and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Van Densen, Menasha; Mrs. Marie Van Lerhoven, son Joseph and daughter, Bernice, Mackville; Mr. and Mrs. John Peters and family, Forest Junction; Miss Leo Van Densen, Mr. and Mrs. John Sprenger and family, Leo, Merin and Jack Hagany, Leo, Lester and Marian Sprenger, Kaukauna; Miss Adeline Sprenger, Miss Elizabeth Stoltz, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hawley, Gladys, Mildred and Jerome Hawley, Appleton.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nagel, 416 E. Nicholas street, surprised them with a hard time costume party Monday night. The affair was also a housewarming party, as the Nagels moved only recently into the home. The evening was spent playing games.

Christian Mothers society of St. Therese church will sponsor another of its series of card parties at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at the parish hall. Mrs. Ben Hartzheim and Mrs. Joseph Alferi will be in charge.

Mrs. Eric Flinn, 1121 N. Oneida street, entertained at a party Monday night for her daughter, Ruth, and for Miss Dorothy Winberg, both of whom will enter the nurses' training school at St. Vincent hospital, Chicago. Miss Winberg left for Chicago today. Miss Flinn will leave Sunday.

Prizes at the party were won by Miss Jane Giesbers and Miss Arlene Kranzsch. Others present were Miss Ardith Kranzsch, Miss Sylvia Koletke, Miss Grace Buchert and Miss Mary Jane Snyder.

Hot chocolate and doughnuts will be served at open house for actives, pledges, alumnae and guests of Alpha Chi Omega sorority at the chapter room following the homecoming football game Saturday afternoon, it was planned at a meeting of the active members last night. Miss Ruth Schroeder will be chairman of the event and she will be assisted by the Misses Mabel Currir and Jean Adrianson, Milwaukee.

Alpha Delta Pi sorority pledges entertained pledges of Beta Theta Pi fraternity at a popcorn party Sunday afternoon at the Pan-Hellenic house. Games and dancing provided the entertainment.

Blessmans Visit Relatives Before Leaving for Manila

Lieutenant and Mrs. Edward M. Blessman have come from Washington, D. ## Lie Detector Test at Madison Helps Solve Grand Larceny Case

Waupaca—A lie detector test at Madison is responsible for the speedy solution of the case of Robert Genskow, according to District Attorney Paul Roman. Genskow, arrested and charged with grand larceny on Oct. 6, entered a plea of not guilty when he was arraigned before Justice S. W. Johnson. That afternoon he volunteered to take the lie detector test and went to Madison Saturday with the district attorney and Sheriff D. R. Campbell.

The tests indicated that he had not been telling the truth but it was not until Sunday morning that he made a full confession and admitted his guilt to the sheriff. Monday he changed his plea of not guilty to that of guilty when he was again taken before Justice Johnson. He was bound over to circuit court for sentence, and Monday afternoon made application to be taken before Judge A. M. Scheller for sentence. He was put on probation for one year to the state board of control, with orders to make immediate restitution of the stolen money.

October Offers Ideal Time For Long Hikes in Country

BY CLARA HUSSONG
Again referring to my outline for monthly nature trips I find the notation, "In October we'll climb a few hills in search of autumn leaves." If you've been planning a long ramble through the country be sure to take it this month, for by the time November comes the air has lost its zestful tang, the skies are nearly always overclouded and the vivid colors of the landscape have begun to fade.

A typical October day dawns clear and bright, the air is snappy in the early morning hours but warms up by noon and there is a blue haze over the landscape which gives distant tree-crowned hills a purplish look. On such a day if the housewife doesn't roll up her kitchen apron, toss it into the sink, along with her dirty dishes and take that long walk she has been promising herself, there's something very wrong with her.

Good This Year
In most years by the first of October the leaves are pretty well colored in this section of the state, but this year with its longer growing season it will be about the middle of the month, or even a little later, before they are at their best. It's not the frost that colors the leaves, as I've explained for the last five years, and still I meet people who tell me, "Oh, up north the leaves are all red, they've had their hard frosts already, you know."

The truth is that the farther north you go, the shorter the growing season, consequently everything ripens earlier, leaves as well as pumpkins and corn. The coloring of the leaf is a process of its ripening and the better ripening season, the better the colors. During cold, wet autumns we have the poorest display of leaves. We should have fine colors this year.

For your hike, those distant hills whose climbing seemed too arduous a task through the summer months will be just about right these crisp October days. Wear comfortable clothes, take along field glasses and a book if you like, but don't load yourself down. Hill climbing is hard work and as we are in search of leaves you can always take home a few specimens and look up their identity when you get home.

Birds Are Migrating
The trees that grow on hill-tops and hillsides are of many kinds: oaks, maples, beeches, sycamores, pines and other evergreens. Even those that love the lowlands, such as elms, ashes and the soft maple, can be found on hillsides. Besides trees, there will be a variety of late flowers still in bloom, the many kinds of asters, wild sunflowers, bluebells, a few goldenrods and others.

If you come to a sandy, oak-grown spot you may find that interesting shrub, witch hazel, which puts out its blossoms now. The fruits of the hornapple, the sheepberry and other viburnums and d bittersweet add a touch of color to the landscape. By the way, bittersweet along with the pitcher plant, wood and turk's cap lilies have recently been added to the list of plants protected by the state. Trilliums, orchids, arbutus and the lotus flower have been protected for years.

Migrating birds are plentiful now even though most of the earlier fliers have been gone for several weeks. You will still see the fox, white-throated and white-crowned sparrows, horned larks, myrtle warblers, many bluebirds and meadowlarks and perhaps even a brown thrasher or two. Keep your ears open for the honk of flying geese and the shouting call of whistling swans.

Leaves Turn Color
To get back to our autumn leaf gathering, perhaps the favorite leaf is that of the red or soft maple. Our other native maples turn yellow in fall but the red variety is brighter in color, tawny orange, every conceivable shade of red from pinkish to deep wine, and sometimes yellow flecked with spots of bright red. Its brilliant coloring gives it away immediately in fall but in summer you can identify it just as easily if you note that marginal outline, which is toothed as well as lobed. The sugar or hard maple and its close relative, the black maple are five-lobed also but they lack the serrated edge of the lobes and the sinuses. The deeply-cut leaf and the whitish underside are the marks of the silver maple, the fourth member of our native maples.

Sumachs have been turning color for several weeks and the crimson leaves are favorites with many. Some oaks are beginning to take on a purplish or wine color. In a few weeks we will see them in many colors, bronze, yellow, deep red and mahogany. The bright yellow of the birches, beeches and ash will set off the more brilliant colors.

The autumn landscape with its mad gay colors is something for everyone to enjoy and the one who takes in the spectacle on foot, walking briskly or rambling along in a leisurely manner, will not be sorry that for a few hours he has forgotten work and worries and has kicked leaves, breathed in the rich smell of dying vegetation and listened to the chirp of the crickets.

Arthur Maloney Rites Conducted at Green Bay

Hilbert—The body of Arthur Maloney, who died Friday morning at his home in Green Bay, was brought here Monday morning for burial in the Gavin lot of St. Mary's Catholic cemetery. ## Shiocton Teams Given Honors in Judging Contest

Youths Visit Sheep Farm En Route to State Competition at Madison

Shiocton — Shiocton agricultural judging teams brought home several certificates from the state judging contest held at the College of Agriculture in Madison Oct. 6 and 7.

Of the 130 teams and 390 individuals in the crops division, the Shiocton boys received a superior rating as well as individual placings won by Stanley Schroth and Durward Stevenson. Only 15 teams received a superior rating in this division.

Of the 185 teams entered in the dairy cattle division 24 teams received a rating above Shiocton.

There were also 10 potato judging teams entered and only four of these received a rating higher than Shiocton. This was the highest rating the Shiocton high school ever received at the state judging contest. Results of the contest also showed that of all June 1939 University of Wisconsin graduates now Hugh G. Alberts, the new instructor at Shiocton, received the highest rating of all the new instructors.

The boys left Thursday noon and stopped at the Walter Renk sheep ranch located at Sun Prairie, Renk is an outstanding breeder of purebred Hampshire and Shropshire sheep. Renk also is a commercial hybrid seed corn producer.

In Madison the boys visited the museum, the United States Forest Products laboratory, the university marsh farm, and Vilas park zoo. Saturday afternoon the boys attended the Texas-Wisconsin football game.

on aggressively, more to himself than to her. "I've been out here for three of the most confoundedly long days I ever lived through."

"She removed the gillie from her left foot, and rubbed an aching arch."

"D. T.?"

"No!" he exploded. "Overwork—at least so they've almost convinced me."

"Doing what?"

"Slaving over ore analysis . . . hey! you're the one to answer questions! What are you doing here?"

She shook her head. "You're in a bad way, m'lud! You don't even know where you are. This isn't a hospital, not even a private sanitarium. It's a ranch. You have no business here at all."

"Your mistake. I happen to have rated the place for a month."

"From whom?"

"The owner."

"Is his name, by any chance, Atkins?"

He told her stiffly: "Atkins G. S. if it interests you."

"It does! Enormously. I never knew before what the initials stand for. We just call him Atkins."

She tipped her head to one side and tried out several combinations. "Gentlemanly Scoundrel? Gentlemanly Scoundrel? No, won't do. Atkins is sad of face and dour of manner."

He sank a little deeper into his chair and replied indifferently.

"His sad face is his fortune, it seems. Lance Carroll, the cartoonist, made it famous. He spent some months here, Atkins informed me."

Nice guy, too; generous; paid Atkins a whacking sum to pose for him."

"Buff bent to her shoestrings. 'He is a nice guy! And as you say—generous. Too bad his daughter doesn't take after him.'"

"Doesn't she?" He had lost interest in the cartoonist; in Atkins, himself and his background as well, or so the girl concluded from his manner. She felt his attention needed jabbing.

Continued tomorrow.

1,051 Skin Tests Made During Week in County

Chilton—Tuberculosis examinations in Calumet county during the last week show that out of the 1,051 skin tests only 106 reacting cases were found, indicating that about 10 per cent had contracted the germ.

Only 122 fluorescent examinations were made. These examinations included positive reactors and contacts. No active cases of tuberculosis were found in the county. The records show 9.9 per cent of reactors in Calumet county.

Car Damaged When It Skids on Rail Track

A car driven by Mrs. Betty Wideston, 21, Wisconsin Rapids, was slightly damaged about 12:30 yesterday afternoon when it skidded on the railroad tracks on N. Oneida street and ran into a building owned by the Marston Brothers company.

Mrs. Wideston emerged from a driveway and was turning north on Oneida street when the accident occurred, according to police.

"No Experiments for Me When My Child CATCHES A COLD!"

NOTICE TO MOTHERS...Today 3 out of 5 mothers—knowing how foolish it is to experiment or constantly dose delicate stomachs—use this home-approved external poultice-vapor treatment to relieve distress of colds.

WHEN a cold makes your child feel miserable, all stuffed up—causes muscular soreness or tightness, irritation in the upper bronchial tubes or spasms of coughing—let the experience of other mothers help you to relieve the distress.

Here's what you do: At bedtime, rub the child's throat, chest and back with Vicks VapoRub. And see what morning brings!

ACTS 2 WAYS AT ONCE...Almost immediately VapoRub

starts stimulating like a good old-fashioned poultice. And, at the same time, pleasing—helpful—medicinal vapors are released by body heat and breathed direct into the cold-irritated air passages.

Then for hours this poultice-vapor action continues. It induces refreshing sleep. And when you see how it relieves distress you will understand why Vicks VapoRub is a family standby in 3 out of 5 homes. WHY TAKE NEEDLESS CHANCES!

BY GORDON MCINTYRE

URE, we looked bad, terribly bad, but don't count us out of things just yet. It's hard to play football when two of the best boys are having trouble keeping their stomachs where they are supposed to be and when a third, really the team's spark plug, doesn't know whether he'll remain upright long enough for the next play.

It was Coach Bernie Heseltun of the Lawrence Vikings who was doing the talking and the time was yesterday afternoon as he contemplated meeting his charges for their Monday drill, a drill that would lead up to the annual Lawrence homecoming game Saturday with Carleton college.

Temperature 95 Degrees
 Admitting all other things, Heseltun was definite in the opinion that the Iowa heat—95 degrees and humidity so high it was almost difficult to breathe—beat Lawrence as much as anything else Saturday. Within eight minutes after the opening kickoff Lawrence began to show signs of going haywire physically and with that, mentally.

The Vike mentor also feels that if he hadn't beaten Coe the year before and went on to win the Midwest title—as a first year coach—things might not have been so tough for his squad. "The old fox (meaning the veteran Moray Eby, Coe coach for 25 years) sat on the other side of the field and had a great time," Heseltun said. And after the game he remarked that no doubt the heat got Lawrence and then added, "But it's a tough league" and Bernie new full well what that meant. The old fox had taken the opportunity to cut him down and a bit—how!

From the Lawrence side of the field there were many things about the game that didn't help the Vikes cause. Twice in the first period Lawrence had chances on passes that might have given it a lead, a lead on which the opportunity was denied and when things started to go wrong with Jones, with Kaemmer, with Buesing, there wasn't much left to do.

Sleeper Pass Hurt
 That sleeper pass in the first half was like a knife in the back of an ailing man, according to the Vikes, and they were set up for the rest of the period. As a result they trailed 19 to 0 at the half.

Between lines every effort was made to collect, get Jones' stomach settled, and Kaemmer's and others. Nineteen points didn't look like a lot when the boys left the dressing room but when they got out on the field and Jones became ill again and Kaemmer followed as a matter of natural events, the Vikes were low.

Then, on the opening kickoff, the ball rolled down the sidelines and Nystrom, properly enough, tried to let it roll out of bounds which would have brought it up to the 35 yard line. But a man came tearing down the field and before Nystrom could block him out fell on the ball. Three plays later Coe had a touchdown and 28 to 0 lead, which even Heseltun couldn't believe.

"I don't mean to say that we've got a great team," Heseltun said, "and that we'll clean up all along the line. We haven't. We haven't a blocker like Maertzwiler in the backfield and our ends aren't a particular threat on passes. But we aren't a ball team that should suffer a triumph like we took at Coe."

"Can we bound back for Saturday?" I really don't know. We've got a lot of sophomores and how they'll react is something that only the ride home from Cedar Rapids, and don't think the boys didn't hate to get off the bus and face the students."

See Movies
 Last night's workout wasn't much because Heseltun felt a heart to heart talk with the boys would do better than anything else. They had their exercises and then saw motion pictures of the Lawrence-Northern State Teachers game which revealed a lot of things that need correcting.

For one thing, the pictures show that the backfield work isn't coordinated, that the blocking leaves considerable to be desired and that if the Vikes had any idea they looked good against the Teachers there was plenty of evidence they didn't. Will there be any changes in the lineup this week? Heseltun didn't know; he planned to make a couple

RELEASE TWO BACKS

Pittsburgh—(P)—Following their fourth straight setback by a 14-7 score at the hands of the New York Giants, the Pittsburgh Pirates' gridders yesterday released Halfbacks Dick Nardi and Bob Masters.

MILWAUKEE BACKS ON VIKES SQUAD

Two Milwaukee sophomores who will show in the Lawrence college backfield when the Vikes meet Carleton here Saturday in Midwest conference play are Frank Nencki, above, and Bob Romano, left. Nencki plays a big part in the squad's efforts for he is called upon for a lot of ball carrying and for forward passes. Romano is the quarterback, calls the plays and does some of the blocking. ## Ralph Moeller to Captain U. of W. Against Indiana

Greater Portion of Drill Used to Correct Errors Made Saturday

MADISON—(P)—Ralph Moeller, senior left end from Watertown will captain the University of Wisconsin football team in its first Big Ten game of the year Saturday against Indiana.

Coach Harry Stuhldreger made the announcement before he sent his team through a two hour drill yesterday. A "live bait" tackling drill, skeleton scrimmage and general polishing up exercises featured the workout.

The greater portion of the afternoon was used to correct errors made by the Badgers in the Texas contest. During that game, Stuhldreger made many comments into his dictaphone, which he had close to his side on the bench. The notes were transcribed and the errors pointed out.

"I really believe the boys will have it this week," Stuhldreger said. "When this team explodes, and it will soon, someone will suffer."

Paskvan To Play
 The Badger coach announced that Johnny Doyle, alternate center, and George Paskvan, regular fullback, would be ready to play Saturday.

Both have been out since the season's opener with injuries. Moeller was at the starting left end post in place of Gordie Gile, as the first string ran through signals. Elmer Tornow replaced Al Dorsch at right tackle, but this was not a demotion for Dorsch as he had a late class.

The first string backfield was the same as the one which started the Texas game. Claude York was at quarter, Bob Cone and Bill Schmitz were at the halfback posts and Bob Peterson was at full.

The second, third and fourth teams were shifted considerably. Schmitz was scheduled for today, tomorrow and probably Thursday. Work on new offensive formations and an attempt to build a defense for the high scoring Indiana eleven, will be continued.

SEE RECORD CROWD
 Cleveland—(P)—Ticket sales here today indicated that a sellout crowd of 72,189 may see the Notre Dame-Navy football game at municipal stadium Oct. 21. The stadium record is 80,134, that throng having watched the major league baseball opener July 1, 1932.

shifts to see whether they would make an improvement. John Messenger, Green Bay tackle, may be at the weak side position Saturday. He's had a lot of experience and is faster than Bill West, who has been playing the position. However, Messenger still has to play his first game of varsity ball, receive his first test.

And, in an effort to find a blocker for the backfield, Heseltun may try Dave Spalding of Menasha. A husky lad, and fairly fast, Spalding looked good against Coe and will get a lot of attention this week.

Saturday's game brought no injuries as far as Heseltun knew yesterday. If he can get the boys in physical shape by tonight he feels they'll be ready to work hard and their attitude will go a long way toward indicating what will happen Saturday.

A. A. U. HEAD DIES

New York—(P)—Samuel E. Hoyt, Sr., 64, national president of the Amateur Athletic Union, died last night of injuries received in an automobile accident Sunday night. His post will be filled automatically by the A.A.U.'s first vice president, L. di Benedetto, New Orleans city recreation director, who will serve until the annual convention in Hollywood, Fla., in December.

Kenosha Man Named President of A.A.U.

Milwaukee—(P)—The Wisconsin Association of the Amateur Athletic Union at its annual meeting last night, elected Gerard M. Phelan, city recreation director of Kenosha, as president to succeed Raymond N. Sellon of Milwaukee.

Sellon was elected a vice-president, along with George F. Downer of Madison, Frank A. Bingham of West Bend, Harold S. (Zip) Morgan of Milwaukee and Conrad M. Jennings of Marquette University, Milwaukee.

Arthur P. Eckley of Two Rivers was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Kimberly Works For Manawa Game

Papermakers Will Make Last Home Appearance Friday Night

Kimberly—With three victories in as many starts, Coach Ray Hamann of Kimberly high is preparing his gridders for the last home game of the season Friday night under the lights with Manawa high as the opponent.

The Paper makers remember the hard battle that Manawa put up last year when it lost to Kimberly by a score of 13 to 6. During the last period, an inspired Manawa squad came back with a deadly passing attack, combined with a hard-running game to put the ball on the Papermaker 15-yard line. Four plays later, Keith Gehrke carried the pigskin over for a touchdown.

With a minute remaining, Gehrke shot a 50-yard pass to left end Miller which was good on the Papermakers' 25.

With Williams and Gaffney still on the sidelines with injuries, the Kimberly mentor is drilling his charges on pass defense. The visitors are determined to give Coach Hamann's gridders a setback as evidenced by the Manawa scouts at last week's Omro-Kimberly game.

Hietpas, the flashy back, and Larson, the hard driving plunger, again will be in the backfield for the Papermakers. The blocking and tackling of De Wildt was outstanding in the Omro game for he was in on practically all plays.

Assistant Coach Ray Christoph has charge of the freshmen material and has done creditable work. It played the freshman group from Neenah high last week and turned in a 12 to 0 victory. Tuesday afternoon the squad tackled Kaukauna high second team on the local gridiron.

JOLTING a 237 single and 635 triple, Ed Klingert bagged individual honors during American division matches in the Knights of Columbus league at Elks alleys last night.

Zoric Cleaners registered a high team game of 921 and Summich Grocers piled up a top team series of 2,471.

Despite Klingert's big series on his top game and a 221, Fountain Lumber dropped two games to Schmidt Clothiers. W. Konrad got a 201 game and knotted with D. Schroeder at 520 for the victors.

Pitz and Treiber stayed in a tie for first place with a 2-game win over Schaefer Dairy as Mueller whipped a 215 game and 551 series and Mortell thumped 208. High for the losers was W. Fountain with a 471 series.

Retain Share of Lead
 Zoric Cleaners retained its slice of the circuit lead by taking the odd game from Peoples Laundry. Schomisch totaled 501 and C. Van Dinter totaled 223 for the winners. A Fas paced the losers with a 497 series.

Two games went to Soo Line in a match with Rechner Cleaners. Ed Mollen tripled 440 to lead the winners while I. Stone binged 506 and G. Hoffman grooved 210 for the losers.

Summich Grocers took two games from Wisconsin Telephone company as Bob Recker smacked a 220 game and 563 series. Schiller topped the losers with a 461 total.

Indian Athlete On Grunting Card

Arizona Navajo Will Tangle With Ali Pasha At Menasha
 Menasha—Frank Clemons, a Navajo Indian from Flagstaff, Ariz., will clash with Ali Pasha, a native of Calcutta, India, in one of the feature bouts at the first wrestling show of the season Wednesday night at S. A. Cook armory. The bouts will start at 8.30.

Clemons is reported to be one of the greatest Indian athletes since the days of Jim Thorpe. He ran short of opposition in the west and now is campaigning in the mid-west. The Indian is reported to have speed and change of pace, as well as knowledge of a wide variety of holds. He can use steam roller tactics with the toughest of them also. His favorite hold is the Indian death lock.

Clemons is 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weighs 187 pounds. His swarthy opponents has been pictured in various "Ghandi" poses but when it becomes time to grapple he will move around with the best of them. The two will meet in an hour time limit bout, contesting for two out of three falls.

In the other half of the double-windup Jerry Muker of Honolulu will tangle with Winnett Wallington Watson of London, England. In the opener Jack Conley of Boston will meet Pete Vukowich of Milwaukee. The bout will be a one-fall, 60-minute contest.

Michigan Gets Job of Showing Iowa's Strength

Wolves Tackle Hawks Saturday; Purdue Worries About Gophers
 BY TOM SILER
 CHICAGO—(P)—Just how strong is Iowa? There are at least five Big Ten coaches who would like to know, but the conference schedule decrees that Fritz Crisler and his powerful Michigan eleven shall learn the answer first.

The Hawkeyes naturally are rated the underdog in their battle with Michigan Saturday, but a team that can score 73 points in its first two games and pull off many other surprises may not be through fooling the dopesters.

In pre-season discussions Iowa was considered as only a minor factor in the title race. One and all agreed it would take Dr. Eddie Anderson, the new coach, at least a couple of years to bring the Hawks out of the doldrums. But he has rebuilt Iowa's grid hopes at an amazing rate.

The football faithful at Ann Arbor Saturday will see in Nile Kinnick one of the country's outstanding backs who quite possibly might steal the spotlight from Michigan's own offensive star, Tom Harmon.

MELVIN "Bud" Wegner blasted a 258 game and 635 series for individual honors and paced Wm. Nehls and Son to top team totals of 1,176 and 3,109 during Builders league matches at Arcade alleys last night.

Gmelner and Gearson took a lone hold on first place with a clean sweep in a match with Winter and Sons. R. McCallum headed the attack with a 224 game and 579 series. High for the losers was W. Winter with a 216 game add 533 total.

Wm. Nehls and Son utilized the big team counts to win three games from H. C. Schultz and Son. Not far behind Wegner was Wally Robilee with games of 206 and 218 for a 614 series, Earl Fourness with a 205 and Bob Nehls with a 202. E. Horn thumped a 213 game and 551 series and H. Appleton Neon Signs grand slammed Hoepfner and Sons as E. Hantschel kegled 427. H. Hoepfner showed 470 for the losers.

Painters Win Two

Two games went to Master Painters in a tilt with Schabo and Son. L. Feavel paced the winners with a 502 series while S. Bronstad had 202 and 463 for the losers.

Heinritz Sheet Metal took two games from Brettschneider's as Roy Johnson hammered a 231 game and 604 series and Bill Dessort singled 212. E. Schroeder rolled 440 to top the losing quint.

Standard Manufacturing company downed Al Utschig and Sons in two games as R. Schmidt topped a 540 series. Tops for the losers was E. Stack with games of 203 and 202 for a 586 triple.

Schuessler Weatherstrips were eased out of first place but won two games from F. Piette and Sons. R. showed 570 for the winners while L. Hauerbugged a 220 and N. Buck Piette mainstayed the losers with a 452.

Hoffman Construction company took two games from H. Thiel as G. Hoffman kegled 519 and 511. G. S. G. flow tumbled a 518 series to pace the losers.

Driscoll Seeking Reserves for M. U.

Drave Braden, Guard, And Johnny Goodyear, Back, Lost to Squad

Milwaukee — (P) — Coach Paddy Driscoll of Marquette had his hands full today looking for replacements for Dave Braden, guard, and Johnny Goodyear, halfback, two mainstays of his football team.

Braden was lost indefinitely when a broken arch sustained in the Kansas State game, while Goodyear will be out for another two weeks with a broken hand.

Facing a tough foe in Michigan State at East Lansing next Saturday, Driscoll has Jimmy Richardson, a sophomore, for Goodyear's halfback berth but needs reserves Ed O'Brien, given a whirl at the job scored the only varsity touchdown yesterday in a scrimmage with the freshmen. O'Brien is an able runner and passer but coaches find him weak defensively.

Joe Kinsler apparently had first call for Braden's job, with Charles Hooper and Eugene Cramer other possibilities.

Warren Hall, 200-pound Chicago sophomore, loomed up well at halfback yesterday.

The squad will leave for Lansing Mich., Thursday night.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

H. "KELLY" WELLER, who does pretty well by following sports closely and then making interesting little bets with his friends and acquaintances, has profited further by his efforts and won himself a ticket to the Lawrence-Carleton homecoming game Saturday.

Weller had the best mark among the Appleton football score guessers last week picking Appleton and Central at 9-9 and Oshkosh over North by 12 to 0 and then missing three scores by a single point. They were Menasha over Clintonville, Carleton over Beloit and Green Bay West over Fond du Lac.

Clarence Hein of Appleton came mighty close to repeating his winning efforts of last week. He picked Carleton over Beloit and he really hung up a score when he picked Nebraska over Minnesota. But Weller's close scores gave "Kelly" the edge.

Considering how the football season has been going, the returns last week were great. When you consider it's hard enough even picking the winning team with all of the state and Big Ten upsets last week, well, correct scores are really a job. If you don't think so ask Otto Kirk who seems to have lost the touch that put him up in front the first week of the contest.

Neenah: Karl H. Breitrick, Route 1, who picked Kimberly over Omro.

Menasha: Chi Novakofski did a comeback and picked Kimberly over Omro and missed by a point on West-Fond du Lac and Oshkosh-North.

Clintonville: Willard Wolff, 40-Ninth street, Kimberly over Omro.

Kaukauna: Earl O'Connor, route 3, who picked Kimberly over Omro, West over Fond du Lac and missed on Oshkosh-North and Kaukauna-Shawano by a point. Note to Eugene Regenfuss: We'll fix it up for this week.

Kimberly: Bud Harley, who picked Green Bay West over Fondy and missed on Oshkosh over North by a point.

New London: Lloyd Bodoh, 319 E. Washington street, who picked Oshkosh over North.

Little Chute: Don Peeters, who picked Oshkosh over North and missed on West over Fondy by a point and thereby earned the edge over several other Chuters.

White Sox Even Series With Cubs

Score Is 6 to 1: Final Game Will Be Played This Evening

Chicago — (P) — The Chicago Cubs' Earl Whitehill and Teddy Lyons of the White Sox will be the opposing pitchers tonight as the two teams meet in the seventh and deciding game of their series for the city baseball title.

Lyons set the Cubs down with five hits last Thursday to give the Sox their first series' victory.

The American leaguers evened the series last night on their home field before 26,000 spectators behind the superb southpaw pitching of Thornton Lee, who allowed four scratch hits.

All of them were infield hits, three of them producing the Cubs' lone run in the first inning. Lee yielded the other hit in the third inning, after which no Cub reached first base. The Sox tied the score in the fourth and pushed across the winning run in the fifth, going on to score four more later to win by 6 to 1.

The two teams split the first two games, the Cubs won the third and fourth, but the fighting Sox hopped on the National leaguers' pitching in the last two games to win handily.

Last night's attendance boosted the total to 114,037 for the six games, more than 69,000 of whom attended the two night games in Comiskey field.

Jansen Keglars Beat Kimberly Real Estate

Little Chute — Jansen Construction company won the odd game in a match against the Kimberly Real Estate team Saturday evening. Norbert Jansen paced the winners with a 536 series. Rich Wydevone topped the losers with a 509 triple.

Krcmar, Ripon Star, to Do More Ball Carrying

Ripon — (P) — "Swede" Krcmar, who led the opening kickoff 77 yards against Knox Saturday, will do more ball carrying against Carroll here next Saturday. Coach Carl Doehling decided Krcmar will be more effective when freed of the responsibility of calling plays, the Redmen's mentor believes. Ken Peters, fullback, and Carl Gatzke, reserve halfback, will share the signal calling.

Milwaukee Grid Mentor Suspended

Erv Gerboth, West Division, Replaced After Altercation at Game

Milwaukee — (P) — Erv Gerboth, West division high school football coach, was under temporary suspension today following an altercation on the football field with Earl Clark, a field judge.

Arlie Schardt, acting principal of the school, relieved Gerboth of his duties late yesterday and installed Howard Aker as head coach until the situation is cleared up.

Edwin O. Hoppe, high school athletic commissioner, conferred with Schardt, Gerboth and Clark and will place his findings before the city high school athletic council Oct. 18. The council will determine whether Gerboth's suspension is to become permanent.

Gerboth and Clark came to blows Saturday in a game between West and North high schools, over Clark's ruling of pass interference on the West 4-yard line just before North scored the game-deciding touchdown.

Last fall Gerboth gave West its first city championship in 11 years, tying with Washington. Gerboth, former star at Milwaukee State Teachers college, succeeded Erv Gerber as West division coach midway in the 1937 season. Aker played four years of football at Carroll college and has been assistant at West for eight years.

BADGER BRIEFS

(Editors note: This is another of a series of articles on University of Wisconsin football players.)

BY DAVE ROWE

Madison — (P) — Room mates on the campus but rivals on the football field. That is the case of Johnny Doyle, of Erie, Pa., and Jack Murray, of Plymouth, Pa., both seniors. Doyle, a 23-year-old 6 foot 1 inch Irishman, for two years has alternated with Murray at the pivot post. The Badger squad does not have a first and second string center. They are alternates.

The 190 pound tuffly played football, basketball and was a weight man on the prep track squad. He captained the grid eleven in both his junior and seniors. The team won the city title. He was a member of the National Honor Society.

Doyle was virtually born with a football in his hand. Two brothers were outstanding athletes. Harrison played in high school and another brother, Tom, coached at Colgate for three years. Many All-Americans came from Doyle's home town. Ockie Anderson, a guard, Stewart Holcomb, of Ohio State and Jos Torney, of Pittsburgh, all were fellow citizens.

Doyle is taking economics at the University. He worked on a road construction gang in his home state this summer.

Dazzling Dukes Meet Pittsburgh Eleven Saturday

De-Fanged Panther Will Be Ready With Forward Passing Attack

BY JOHN CAMPBELL

PITTSBURGH — (P) — Installed as heavy favorites, the dazzling Dukes from Durham, N. C., come to Pittsburgh this weekend to take up where they left off in the snow and mud last fall with a 7-0 victory over Pitt.

But the de-fanged Panther, which went strictly amateur this year, won't concede a thing while anxiously awaiting the big test. Says genial Charley Bowser, new head man of football at the skyscraper schoolhouse:

"Duke seems to be a lot stronger offensively this year and their defense looks just as good as I did a year ago. But I'm very well pleased with my team's showing against Washington and West Virginia — and we'll show up for the game."

Bowser, formerly chief assistant to Dr. John Bain Sutherland, succeeded his boss when "Jock" resigned last spring.

Regarded for years as one of the country's outstanding power teams, the Panthers last fall began to show signs of air-mindedness. Against the cowboys of Southern Methodist from the Texas passing paradise Pitt took to the skylines for an overwhelming victory. However, the rest of the season the Panthers stuck pretty much to power.

But this fall began a new chapter. De-emphasized under a strict accounting agreement with the Big Ten and minus three-quarters of last year's "dream" backfield along with most of the regular line, Pitt definitely was relegated to the second division in early season predictions.

Pitt went to Seattle to meet Washington and won with a brilliant display featuring the pitching of "Dandy Dick" Cassiano, lone backfield holdover. Last Saturday came West Virginia with a team generally regarded as stronger than the one beaten, 19-0, by Pitt last year. The Mountaineers suffered a 20-0 clawing.

Nine Cubs are Signed For the 1940 Season

Chicago — (P) — Contracts for 1940 flattered into the Chicago Cubs front office like homing pigeons today.

Nine of the Cubs signed with Owner Phil Wrigley for next year, at unannounced salaries. They were:

Pitchers Larry French, Charley Root, Bill Lee and Rookie Vern Olsen; Captain Billy Herman, second baseman; outfielders Bill Nicholson, Jim Gleason and Phil Cavarretta, and catcher Gus Mancuso.

Manager Gabby Hartnett was not among the early signers, but his present contract doesn't expire until Dec. 31.

Keller Isn't Impressed With Keller's Hitting

BY SID FEDER

NEW YORK — (P) — About the only fellow who wasn't particularly impressed with Charley Keller's job of work in the world series was (you guessed it) Charley Keller.

"Guess I was just swingin' where they were pitchin'" insisted the short, hairy little fellow somewhat shyly. "Don't know any other reason why I got hot."

This was from the lad who merely collected seven hits in 16 times at bat for 19 bases and a .438 batting average in leading the Yankees to their four-straight walloping of the Cincinnati Reds.

He led the series in runs, runs batted in, hits and the size of his meals. This killer Keller was the most amazing rookie in a series since Pepper Martin turned Connie Mack's hair white and gave Mickey Cochrane a nervous breakdown back in 1931.

You asked him how he could hit a ball like he does, and he wasn't so sure about that either.

"I got good strong arms," he pointed out, rolling up his sleeve to show a forearm that resembles a good stout trunk of an oak tree. "How'd I get 'em? Why, milkin' cows when I was a kid I guess. From the time I was seven, my father used to have me milk the cows down on the farm near Middleton (Middletown, Md., pop. 900)."

He went to the University of Maryland and played a year of football there. Then during the summer he picked up some odd change playing semi-pro ball for a couple of years in North Carolina. That was four or five years ago as he recalls.

Scout Wasn't Impressed

That's where the Yanks heard about him, and sent a scout down to look him over. The scout wasn't particularly impressed at first, because of his lack of weight. That, too, was the reason Clark Griffith of Washington turned him down.

However, the Yankee scout came back for another look.

"Why," Keller explains, "he must have come back three, four times before he signed me up and sent me right to Newark. I played a year there, then went back to Maryland to finish my education."

"I have a degree now in economics and agriculture. The family is living in town (Frederick, Md.) but some day I want to get a farm and capitalize on my education."

He was loud in praise of Paul Derringer, the Reds' No. 1 pitcher, off whom he hit a game-wrecking triple and a homer. "Yeah," he insists, "Paul's as good as I ever looked at. If you get a hit off him, you have to have your eyes on the ball."

This world series stuff, Keller says, can be good and bad.

"Yes, sir. I sure liked this one. But the next time some of these pitchers may make me swallow my bat."

The name of Christopher Columbus has been written in other ways. The Italian form is "Cristoforo Colombo," and the Spanish form is "Cristobal Colon."

After leaving Italy, Columbus became a sailor on a Portuguese ship. He married a Portuguese woman.

Columbus telling his ideas to the Spanish rulers.

History might have been different if the king of Portugal had listened to Columbus. As early as 1474, the young sailor wanted to sail west in the hope of reaching India. He asked King John II to give him vessels for the purpose, but his request was not granted. Columbus sent letters to the English king, Henry VII. What would have happened if Henry had accepted the plan?

We can hardly blame monarchs of that time for not believing Columbus could succeed. It was the common idea that a trip across the Sea of Darkness (that is, the Atlantic ocean) would end in total loss. People supposed the ships would be lost, and that the sailors would meet death. There seemed enough danger to sea voyages without adding danger which (so they thought) was a foolish danger.

Yet a man with a plan may do what seems impossible. Columbus went to Spain, and there he kept talking to people about his great idea. It took him seven years to win his point. King Ferdinand did not really believe in him, even in 1492, but Queen Isabella took his side.

Spain was a sea-trading nation. If there was an all-water route to India, the Spanish rulers wanted to know it. There lately had been much trouble trading with India by the eastward route, in which goods had to be carried part way overland. Robber tribes had been capturing the caravans.

Sometimes we read that people in Europe wanted to get "spices" from India. That is part of the story, but only part. Perhaps more important were the silks and jewels which could be obtained by trade with the Orient.

Oddly enough, there would have been no voyage by Columbus if he had not made a mistake. He figured the earth to be much smaller than it is, and therefore expected to reach the Orient after a voyage of only a few thousand miles.

The straight-line distance westward from Spain to India is just about 14,000 miles. If Columbus had known that he would not have dared to try such a journey.

Coach Awards Day Off for Grid Win Over Indian Team

Four Victories in Four Games Is Record of High School Squad

Kaukauna—As a reward for their 13 to 8 victory over Shawano Saturday Kaukauna High school grid-ers got their first day off of the season yesterday. Today preparations will begin for Saturday's tilt here against Clintonville. Only two conference games remain after the Trucker contest, with New London here and West DePere on the Phantoms' field. A game with East DePere, 1939 champions of the eastern division of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference, concludes the season Armistice day here.

Four victories in four games—three of them conference battles—show the Kaws ringing up superior marks in all departments of the game. Thirteen touchdowns have been scored, which added to nine points by placement off Karl Giordana's toe give Kaukauna 87 points, compared to which opponents have counted four touchdowns, a safety and one extra point for a total of 27.

Giordana Leads
Giordana leads the Kaws with five touchdowns and nine points for 9. Following are Leo Rohan and Bob Danner with two touchdowns each, and Phelan Fenal, Willis Ranquette, George Steffen and Bill Alger with one each.

In the matter of first downs the Kaws lead 43 to 22, and have gained 723 yards by rushing compared to 473 for opponents. Ten completed passes out of 28 tries give the Kaws 155 yards, with opponents' 8 out of 34 yielding up 127 yards.

Kaukauna has fumbled seven times and recovered five of them. Opponents have fumbled 12 times, and Kaukauna has pounced on eight. Only in the matter of penalties is Kaukauna on the wrong side of the ledger, being set back 185 yards to 80 for opponents.

Thilmany Leases Union Bag Plant; Start Rebuilding

Part of Structure Will be Used for Convert- ing Plant

Kaukauna—The Thilmany Pulp and Paper company has leased the old Union Bag and Paper company building near its plant for from five to ten years and will use it as a converting plant and as a warehouse and store room, it was announced yesterday.

The Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company, which owns the building, has entered an agreement with C. R. Meyer Sons company of Oshkosh to rehabilitate and reconstruct the building. Construction work started yesterday.

A number of old wooden structures are to be torn down and the interior of the building will be reconstructed.

According to Thilmany officials, a large part of the structure will be given over to conversion of paper into other products.

Huss, Wendland Win In September Safety Contest at Thilmanys

Kaukauna—George Huss and Rinehard Wendland were the winners for September in the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company's safety contest, according to L. C. Smith, personnel director. The two men received a pair of safety work shoes. There was only one lost time accident in that month, Smith said.

Results of the first two months July and August, in the national safety contest in which the company is participating, show the upper mill one of 10 units with a perfect record, and second high in the number of man hours worked. The lower mill is in fourteenth place.

New Regulations Governing Tree Planting Issued

Works Board Outlines Methods for Care of Trees in Kaukauna

Kaukauna—New regulations governing the planting and care of trees in the city of Kaukauna have been put into effect by the board of public works. Copies of the new rules, which amend the tree planting ordinance passed last year, are available at the office of the city clerk.

In order to plant a tree a permit must be obtained from the city forester. Trees must not be less than one inch in diameter, and the tree hole must not be less than two feet deep and not less than four feet in diameter. All 2-inch or 3-inch trees are to be protected and supported by tree guards.

No trees or shrubs are to be planted at street corners, and at least 20 feet from curb intersections. In newly planted subdivisions all specimens on a street must be of the same kind and of a species agreed to by the city forester.

Permits must be obtained from city forester for pruning. Trimming of trees must begin soon after planting and uniform height of branches above ground gradually attained by pruning, so that in after years they will not interfere with traffic. Clearance from the sidewalk to lower branches must not be less than 10 feet and no limbs or foliage of trees allowed to obstruct the street lighting.

A permit must be obtained for spraying, as well as for removing trees. In cutting down a tree the root stump must be grubbed out and all wood and rubbish immediately removed from the highway. Building contractors must stay not less than two feet from highway trees with building material, with boxing of tree trunks recommended.

Community Club Holds Business Session at Odd Fellows Hall

Shiocton—A meeting of the Shiocton Community club was held at the Odd Fellows hall Friday evening.

The business session was preceded by a 6:30 dinner. Wilford Spoehr acting as chef.

After the dinner a talk was given by Francis Higgins of Clintonville on "Salesmanship." A financial report was read by Earl Kuether, treasurer of the club. A review of the recent homecoming was given by Monroe Mantley, secretary. A social hour followed in which cards were played. Forty-two were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Palmer, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schrewe of Waupaca, were weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Varr Booth of Rhineland.

Harold and Clarence Kling left Sunday morning for California and an extended trip through the west.

Weekend guests at the home of Mrs. Olive Steede included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Connell and son Larry, Milwaukee; Garrison Steede and daughters Merle and Ardis Mae and Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson and daughter Sandra Ann, of New London.

To Dame Nellie Melba, the great singer. "I am doing this to express my gratitude for all that Dame Nellie Melba did for me when I began my career as a singer," he said.

Movieland Its People and Products

Edward G. Robinson was born in Bucharest, Rumania. His family came to America and became naturalized citizens when he was very young. He was educated in the New York public schools and later took a Master of Arts degree at Columbia University. He is an accomplished linguist, speaking six languages fluently. He served in the United States Navy during the World War. At school he had shown marked interest in amateur theatricals and his first professional work was in vaudeville in a sketch written by himself. He appeared in ten Theatre Guild plays on Broadway before going to Hollywood where he first won fame as the gangster king, "Little Caesar." Among his many subsequent screen hits are "Silver Dollar," "Bullets or Ballots," "Kid Galahad," "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" and "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." He stars in a weekly radio program known as "Big Town" and his next starring vehicle will be "The Life of Dr. Ehrlich." Mr. Robinson is married to Gladys Lloyd, formerly of Broadway. They have one son, Edward, Junior.

Hollywood—Ginger Rogers, ex-cubically intoxicated, perhaps by the success of her last two comedies, is announcing in no uncertain terms that she'll never again play another dancing role. "I think she's making a bad mistake. Why scorn the vehicle which was good enough to carry her from obscurity to the very peak of stardom?"

I don't think anyone cheered louder than I did when Ginger got her first solo break in a non-dancing role. It was a chance to prove her versatility, and that's vitally important to any actress. No one can deny that Ginger cashed in heavily on the break.

But now, I'm thinking principally about Ginger's fans. Nine-tenths of them have become Rogers addicts because they admire her dancing, to them she's the screen symbol of poetry in motion. No matter how much they may like her as a light comedienne, the fact remains that they liked her dancing well enough to accept her when she was an unknown, loyally turned out for her every picture, and by their power of numbers made her one of the ten ranking box-office draws. I don't think any star has the right to arbitrarily turn her back on such loyalty.

Let Ginger, by all means, star in the comedy dramas she seems to prefer. I wish her the best of luck. But let's also have a little dancing now and then. We want it—yes, you and you and I—and Ginger, being a star only because we chose to make her one, owes us consideration.

PERSONAL OBSERVATIONS: That tough old bear, Wallace Beery, looks almost angelic when adopted daughter Carol Ann is with him. Keys to success: Norma Shearer's painstakingly developed knack for remembering names and faces. No fashion plate ever had a greater horror of dusty shoes than he-man protagonist Clark Gable. Given another two years to perfect her head-throwing-back technique and Rosalind Russell will be able to rival the gusto of Carol Lombard's famous laugh. Frank Morgan is a between-scenes rummaging addict. It's just a bit disconcerting to find a woman as beautiful as Dolores del Rio so well-informed about weighty subjects. No laugh more gleam than that of a professional comic whose latest joke has just been topped by a rival.

MEMORIES THAT BLESS AND BURN: When Sam Goldwyn used paper mache turkeys to "grandeur-up" the Rod LaRoque-Vilma Banky wedding supper... When Grace Moore, after months of too-strenuous reducing, had to drink six malted milks a day to gain a few pounds... When a little secretarial-school student named Laura Gainer (she's now Janet Gaynor) used to draw laughs by her plans to crash the movies... When Robert Taylor retorted "You're crazy!" to a prediction that he would someday be worth $1,000 a week...

CUFF NOTES: Clark Gable and Carole Lombard will take a flying two-weeks vacation in Gotham, come the later part of November... Fay Holden is bringing her aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hammerton, here from Wales to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary... James Cagney has bought a blue-blooded trotter and racing sulky and plans to compete in future county fairs... Time out for Al Jolson—the flu bugs have got him...

Corn Husking Bee Held On Sprangers Farm

Combined Looks—A husking bee was held Friday evening on the Math Sprangers farm. About 350 bushel of corn were husked. Among those attending the bee were: Mr. and Mrs. Corneil Smaxwill, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Smaxwill, Peter Berghuis, Julia Raymond, Clarence and Rosine Berghuis, Albert Van Staden, Rose Mary Weyenberg, Betty Lom, Charles Verbeek, John Smaxwill and Amy De Groot. After the husking refreshments were served.

When William Pardoe, aged 77, and Mrs. Rose Cross, 73, were married in Evesham, England, they were accompanied by a best man aged 72 and a matron of honor of 68, the latter being the bride's sister who had been a bridesmaid at her first marriage 49 years ago.

Peeters Elected Band President

Little Chute Organization Has Annual Meeting At Village Hall

Little Chute—Richard H. Peeters was elected president and manager of the Little Chute Community band at the annual meeting held Sunday afternoon at the village hall. Other officers elected are: Florian Weyenberg, secretary and treasurer; Nicholas De Bruin, property custodian; Clarence Peeters, Harold Janssen, Roman Van Thiel and Henry Hietpas, trustees; Theodore Van Thiel, drum major. "Bill" Novotny of Oshkosh was reelected as director of the band for the ensuing year. The band now has 38 members and work has been started on a series of concerts which will be presented at the new village hall this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Hietpas and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vanden Heuvel are spending a few days with relatives in Marshfield, Stanley and Boyd.

A daughter was born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Edward De Bruin. Members of Our Lady sodality of St. John church will receive Holy Communion in a body at the 7:30 mass Sunday morning at St. John church.

The members of the Little Chute Business Mens association will hold a meeting Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at Lamers hall. Plans will be completed for an activity program for this winter.

Social Security Right of Every Man, Knights Told

Keller Claims Insurance Of Necessities Duty Of Government

New London—Social security—freedom from fear of the present and worry of the future, and a sufficiency of the necessities of life—are the right of every man and the duty of every government to its citizens, Gustave J. Keller, Jr., of Appleton, told New London Knights of Columbus and their guests at the annual "Landing Banquet" of the council at the Most Precious Blood parish hall Monday evening.

"One of the foundations of our government is the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and yet in this machine age industry is making it impossible for a man to support himself and his family in his declining years," he declared.

He praised the recent steps taken by the United States government in launching its first broad social security program.

Refuse Applicants
Many industries will not consider applicants for work who are over 45 years of age, an age when most are still raising their families and must provide for them, he pointed out.

"They are victims of conditions beyond their control and the creation of some fund is necessary to care for them," the speaker said. "Modern science has lengthened the average normal life span of man while shortening his useful working life."

"It is better to spend money to help unfortunate to a better life than to pour it into institutions in which to herd them and care for them like so many cattle," he declared. "No country whose citizens are happy and satisfied ever will be threatened by the feared isms of Europe."

For an example of what assistance will accomplish, the speaker pointed to the Civilian Conservation Corps which he said, among its many other merits, has even affected a reduction in the number of young boys sent to reformatories in this area.

Cites Encyclicals
Connecting the church with social security, the speaker cited the famous encyclicals of Pope Leo XIII and the late Pius XI which set forth the rights and obligations of workers and employers and the duties of government to the individual, on which principles the success of social security is founded.

The speaker urged his listeners to take up the problem with the same spirit, hopes, courage, foresight and zeal with which Christopher Columbus set out to make the world a better place to live in.

"He discovered America and we, who live in this land of plenty, should see to it that there is plenty for those who need it," he said in closing.

About 120 attended the 7 o'clock dinner at which the Rev. George Beth of Black Creek served as toastmaster. Introduced for brief remarks were the Rev. R. J. Fox, pastor of the New London parish; the Rev. Richard Keller, assistant; and visiting priests, the Rev. Andrew Quella of Hortonville and the Rev. Peter Zey of Lebanon. The program was opened and closed by Grand Knight William Stern, Sr. Dancing followed the dinner.

Homemakers Club Adds 26 Members

Initiation Planned for New Group in High School Organization

New London—Twenty-six new members were voted into the Future Homemakers club of Washington High school at a meeting Monday afternoon, bringing the membership to its approximate total of 55. Initiation will be held later. Business meetings were set for the first Monday of each month after school and social meetings for the third Tuesday evening. Dolores Brault, sophomore, was appointed club reporter.

Begin Remodeling of New London Building

New London—Work of making improvements and alterations to the extent of $7,500 was started Monday on the Schultz Brothers store building at N. Pearl and North Water streets. Interior and exterior work will progress simultaneously with the reopening planned about the latter part of November.

Improvements will include a new exterior of structural glass, new display windows, double central en-

Methodist Men's Club Will Hold Ladies Night Wednesday

New London—Ladies' night will be observed by the Methodist Men's club at a program and luncheon at the church parlors at 7:30 Wednesday evening. A surprise program is being arranged and an outside speaker has been secured for the occasion, according to Frank Beckman, program chairman.

The meeting was advanced a day because of the fall district conference of Methodist churches which will be held at Wausau Thursday and which a number of New London persons plan to attend.

Color motion pictures of his last trip west to Glacier National park and Grand Teton National park will be shown before the Lutheran Men's club at the church parlors Thursday evening by W. T. Constock. It will be a regular meeting of the club postponed from last week.

Andrew Wauschesok, 429 Oak street, was surprised by out-of-town relatives at a party at his home Sunday afternoon and evening in honor of his seventy-second birthday anniversary. In the surprise party were Mrs. Julie Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kunitz and daughter Charlene of Appleton Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wauschesok of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. Katherine Benjamin of Hortonville; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kielman and daughter Jean of Neenah; Mrs. Julia Hetzer, Emil Wauschesok and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Stewart and family of New London.

Ring Committee Is Named at High School

New London—The Senior class ring committee was appointed at Washington High school this week to select the rings or pins for the 1940 graduating class. On the committee are Kenneth Ross, Katherine Polaske, Bernice Leppla, Wallace Hammerberg, Jean Ulrich, Dorothy Allen.

Bulldogs Point For West DePere Game on Friday

New London Rooters Want Win Over Black Phantom Squad

New London—New London High school football rooters have marked down West DePere for the next grid victim of the Red and White eleven and Coach Greg Charlesworth is drilling his squad this week in preparation for another conference battle under the home lights Friday night.

Wet grounds kept the squad in the high school gym for a light workout Monday afternoon and Coach Charlesworth spent the time in signal drills and polishing up plays and flaws in the regular line. Extra time was spent on the second string line to build up stronger reserve power.

Bernard Freiburger, a regular end in his sophomore year last year, came out for his first practice last week and though more than a month behind in training, he is being groomed for replacement work at end or tackle, particularly the latter where good extra players are scarce.

The Black Phantoms haven't fared so well so far this season but they've played only two games. They lost to Shawano 20 to 0 and were nearly taken by Clintonville in a 13 to 7 battle but the Truckers are considerably stronger this year and gave the New London eleven a tough fight for three quarters.

Coach Charlesworth this afternoon took his young "B" squad to Marion to get in some practice scrimmage against the Marion High school fledglings.

St. Ann's Society Will Have Monthly Meeting

Shiocton—Members of St. Ann's society will conduct their monthly meeting at the parish hall Thursday afternoon. The hostesses will be Mrs. Richard Beyer and Mrs. Edward Achtner. After the business meeting cards will be played.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Schmidt entertained friends at their home Saturday evening in honor of the birthday anniversary of the former.

Harvey Greenlaw, president of the New London Senior sodality; Mrs. L. J. Polaski, chief ranger of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters; Mrs. A. F. Christ, past president of the Catholic Women's Study club; and Mrs. William Peters, a guest.

Undergoing operations at Community hospital Monday were Mrs. Frank Miller, 802 Algoma street, New London; Miss Minnie Falk, route 1, New London; and Lucille Artz, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Artz, route 1, Manawa.

A son was born born to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd VanStraten of Shiocton at Community hospital Saturday.

Japanese Live on 5 Cents Per Day

Speaker Says Chinese Probably Never Will Be Overcome

New London—The importance of the Sino-Japanese struggle in China on the world scene was stressed by the Rev. W. A. Schilling of Clintonville in a talk before the New London Rotary club at the Elwood hotel Monday noon. While the European conflict has drawn attention from the Japanese, the events in China are not to be ignored for their world-wide significance, he declared.

"Despite no interference of other nations with Japan's aggressions, the passive resistance of the great Chinese nation probably will never be overcome," he stated.

The speaker pointed out that Japan is taking the cost of its warring activities from the common people and has constantly lowered the standard of living. A food diet has been developed by the Japanese to

'AMERICAN FARMER'

Louis Mueller, Clintonville (above) has attained the highest degree obtainable in the Future Farmers of America, that of an "American Farmer." In this connection, he was awarded an all-expense trip along with three other Wisconsin boys to the national F. F. A. convention and the American Royal Stock show being held at Kansas City from Oct. 8 to 14. Young Mueller had previously held the degree of "State Farmer" and served as state secretary of the F. F. A., concluding his duties in this office at the 1938 state convention which he attended last week at Madison. Louis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Mueller, route 1, Clintonville. He was graduated from the Clintonville high school with the class of 1939 ranking third in the class of 87 seniors.

Men's high score at schafskopf was awarded to George Bruhl and low to Rollie Helsner; women's high, to Mrs. George Bruhl and low to Mrs. Rollie Helsner. Alvin Mielke received the carrying prize.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Mielke, Mr. and Mrs. William Rusch and daughter Shirley, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Diemeier, Mr. and Mrs. George Bruhl and daughter Germaine, Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Helsner, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Peep, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rueden and daughter Marion.

Harold Anthony, who was injured seriously July 31 when he fell while working on a bridge near Iola and who had been confined to the Community hospital, New London, was brought to his home at Shiocton Wednesday.

A son was born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Van Straten at the community hospital, New London.

Fords Hold Lead In Bowling Loop

Defeat Reetz Shoes Three Straight; Shirland Paces Team.

New London—The Fords continued to lead the Goodfellowship league when they out-rolled Reetz Shoes three games and set up new team marks of 911 and 2,499 in matches at Pahl's alleys last night. Harold Shirland paced the victors with marks of 190, 156, and 210 for a big 556 series.

Mike's Taverners of the same loop pushed into second place by downing the Cedar Lawn Dairies three games also, Melvin Westphal leading the winners with counts of 160, 190 and 190 for a 540 total.

Lions Club League
The Twisters pounded out three wins over the Growlers and struck new team highs of 826 and 2,208 but stuck to second place. The Roarers held to their lead by taking two games from the Tamers. A new high individual series of 523 by G. Wells beat Lewis Sawall's former mark by one pin. He spilled lines of 188, 189 and 166.

In the first official games of the village circuit Mike's Garages of Medina succumbed to the Chev Garages of Hortonville in two games and Hodgins' Quarry took Byron's Lunch for two. Hodgins' worked up best scores with a 721 game and 2,038 total, led by Ken Hodgins with a 480 series.

Rally Day Observed At Waupaca Church

Waupaca—Rally Day was observed Sunday by the children of Our Saviour's Lutheran church, with 120 attendance, the largest number on record. Promotion took place during the regular Sunday school hour and was followed by the church service which all children attended in a body. Musical numbers were offered by Sunday school students. The sermon was given by the Rev. Leo Anderson.

The church has increased its attendance at the church school by chartering a bus to and from the Wisconsin Veterans Home bringing 20 children to the service regularly and returning them to their homes. This is one form of the Home Mission work sponsored by the church.

Card Party Planned at Elm Leaf Schoolhouse

Bear Creek—A card party will be given Friday evening at the Elm Leaf school in the town of Bear Creek. Schafskopf and smear will be played. The public is most cordially invited to attend.

Guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gough were: Dr. and Mrs. James A. Gough and sons Jimmie and Bobbie of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Moore, Mrs. Blanche Peterson, Mrs. Florence Russell and Miss Marjorie Moore of Ogdensburg.

Mr. and Mrs. James Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Witt and son Reuben, were weekend visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Neilson at Winona, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ballhorn of Minneapolis spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Ballhorn. Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Ballhorn and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ballhorn of Minneapolis were visitors at New London and Clintonville Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. McClone spent Sunday at Manawa where they attended the christening party in honor of Donald William Allen, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Allen.

Safety...for all!

IT IS DANGEROUS to use just "any" covering that happens to be handy in dressing a minor injury. There is always the risk of infection. First-aid dressings in your home should be as safe as the ones your own doctor would use.

Pioneers in making sterile dressings available to the public... Johnson & Johnson has planned ways to make them available to more and more people.

For example, the price of our two-inch bandage has been reduced one-third from even its depression-years' low price.

All Red Cross products cost only a fraction of their price of years ago.

As a result, today the humblest homes in America can afford the safety and protection of Johnson & Johnson Red Cross products.

Red Cross Bandage; most popular size costs only 10¢
